Bi and Bi Cost: $1,424,640

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism cost the government $1,424,640 up to Jan. 31, the Commons was informed Wednesday.

There are 125 full-time employees under the commission's 10 commissioners, said Jack Davis, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson. The commissioners are paid $100 for each day they spend on commission duties.

Taylor Explains Inaction Fear, Inability Stop Reds

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador Maxwell Taylor believes Moscow and Peking have not responded to the U.S. raids on North Viet Nam because of a combination of fear and inability. It was disclosed Wednesday.

same time charged President Johnson was "a Hitler-type bandit and a war criminal" for ordering the raids. But its broadcasts, heard in Tokyo, made no mention of military action.

Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. It contained these main points: ● There is no truth to the idea that the South Vietnamese are reluctant to fight the Communists. ● Negotiations now are impossible because "one can hardly negotiate one's freedom." ● Communist North Viet Nam's control of the Viet Cong "is absolute."

Mr. Taylor was asked why Communist China and the Soviet Union have not retaliated with military action against the bombing of North Vietnamese targets. "One can't be sure," he replied. "Probably a combination of two factors: inability to respond adequately, and second, the fear of escalation, the realization that the risks of escalation are too great on their side to justify taking any great chances."

Mr. Taylor was asked by his interviewer, CBC commentator Tom Gould, if the United States might not be trying "to save from Communism a country that doesn't want to be saved."

Space Bus RUSSIA LOFTS TWOSOME

Second Ship in Orbit?

BOCHUM (UPI) — The West German Institute for Satellite and Space Research has monitored the signals of one manned Soviet space ship and said a second ship may also be up.

"Certain observations lead us to suspect a second space ship has been fired into the same orbit as the first," an institute scientist said.

Capsule Transfer Planned?

From UPI, AP-Reuters

MOSCOW — The Soviets today orbited two cosmonauts around the earth in a "space bus." Scientific sources said one would emerge from the ship during flight in an observation capsule—a feat never accomplished before.

It was believed that the new wrinkle in the Soviet space program was aimed at permitting a spaceman to make visual observations of an eventual docking operation. Perfection of such a technique is essential to any manned flights to the moon.

The spaceship — Voshkod (Sunrise) 2—was put into orbit six days before the scheduled launching date of America's two-man Gemini project. (See Page 9.)

The Soviet ship carried Col. Pavel Belyayev, 40, the pilot, and Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov, 41, the co-pilot.

The official Soviet Tass news agency said both men were "feeling well." The ship was launched at 10 a.m. (11 p.m. PST).

OUT 200 MILES

Tass said Voshkod 2 was orbiting the earth every 90.9 minutes. Its greatest distance from earth was given as 495 kilometers (308 miles). The closest point was 173 kilometers (108 miles). Tass said the ship was angled at 65 degrees to the equator.

There was speculation in Moscow that the flight would last between one and two weeks.

Russia's last manned space shot—its seventh—was Oct. 12, 1964.

In the October space shot, three cosmonauts—a pilot, a scientist and a doctor—made 16 orbits in a 24-hour flight aboard the first Voshkod (sunrise) space ship.

"Two-way radio communications are constantly maintained with the space ship," Tass said.

EIGHTH FLIGHT

Voshkod II is the eighth manned space flight announced by the Soviet Union. Some observers abroad have suggested there have been other unsuccessful, unannounced flights.

Belyayev and Leonov become the 10th and 11th Soviet cosmonauts.

The United States has launched four single-man space flights.

"The reports by the ship's commander show that the crew without doubt satisfactorily the orbiting and the transition to weightlessness," Tass reported.

"All the equipment on board the space ship is functioning normally."

South Viet Bombs Kill 30 Children

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (Reuters)—South Vietnamese planes bombed a village near here Wednesday, killing an estimated 45 villagers, including 30 school children, military sources here said Wednesday.

A Communist Viet Cong flag was seen flying over the village, Man Quang, about 375 miles north-east of Saigon.

U.S. Planes Pound More Red Targets

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (CP)—Six U.S. Air Force Thunderchief fighter bombers streaked westward under fighter escort Wednesday and emptied their bomb racks of more than 20 tons of high explosives, apparently on Communist targets in Laos.

The Laotian frontier—a jungle gateway for Communist Viet Cong recruits and supplies from North Viet Nam—is only 50 miles west of the U.S. marine base—guarded Da Nang air base.

FIGHTERS ALSO

Accompanying the supersonic jet fighter-bombers were six or more F-100 Super-Sabre fighters.

The strike force returned with no disclosure of the nature of its mission or the results.

A blackout and air raid drill in Hanoi Tuesday night suggested North Viet Nam fears its capital might become a target of U.S.-South Vietnamese air raids, though the closest strike so far has been 100 miles away.

VIET CONG BLASTED

About 24 U.S. B-57 jet-bombers blasted Viet Cong guerrilla positions in Binh Duong province south of Saigon.

A U.S. military spokesman said an American soldier was killed and three others were injured when South Vietnamese forces attacked Viet Cong troops in helicopter and river-borne operations about 65 miles southwest of Saigon Tuesday. He estimated Communist losses at 50 dead.

Citizenship Denied

Still No Room For Godless

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice Stanley Schatz of the Ontario Supreme Court upheld Wednesday a Cayuga county judge's decision denying Canadian citizenship to a Dutch husband and wife because they do not believe in God.

Mr. Justice Schatz emphasized in his 41-page judgment that his review is limited only to a consideration of Judge W. W. Leach's jurisdiction and the law as he applied it.

Judge Leach had earlier refused to recommend Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bergama of Canada, Ont., as being suitable to be granted citizenship under the Canadian Citizenship Act of 1954.

Mr. Bergama, who came here nine years ago, had admitted to Judge Leach that his family does not attend church. He told the judge that if his children want to join a church, "that is up to them."

NOT EVERYBODY

Judge Leach had replied: "The things that we believe in this country stand the Christianity... being honest and believing in Christ's teachings."

"Not everybody follows this, but that is what we try to attain in this country, the Christian way of life. I feel you must have some kind of faith, but you don't seem to believe in anything from what I can gather."

Judge Leach had ruled that the Bergamas could not take the oath of allegiance as prescribed in the Citizenship Act.

Mr. Justice Schatz said in his report that originally in common law a person could not be accepted as a witness unless he believed in God. He said that nothing in the Citizenship Act has relaxed this requirement.

The judgment noted that the Canadian Bill of Rights, calling for freedom of religion, was passed after the Citizenship Act and its regulations.

BILL OF RIGHTS

The Supreme Court judge said: "The Canadian Parliament has in the Citizenship Act declared the requirements for obtaining the privilege of Canadian citizenship, and the Bill of Rights in no way affects the purpose or effect of that statute."

He said Judge Leach made no error in law that would deprive him of jurisdiction, and the Ontario Supreme Court could not interfere with the judge's decision on that ground.

Two Rushed To Hospital

A man and woman were taken to Rest Haven Hospital in Sidney after a freight tractor and car collided at Patricia Bay Highway and Beacon Avenue early today.

The man's injuries were undetermined. His wife was shaken up. Two other occupants of the car were uninjured.

Letter Tabled in House

Voters' List Duplications 'Ran Up to 40 Per Cent'

OTTAWA (CP) — A letter tabled in the Commons Wednesday charges that 40 per cent of the names on 1963 Burnaby-Coquitlam voters lists appeared on the lists of other federal ridings in British Columbia.

Burnaby-Coquitlam is represented in the Commons by New Democratic Leader Douglas.

Allegations about "alarming concentrations" of duplicated voters lists were contained in a letter sent to the Commons elections committee nearly a year ago by Morland T. Brown of 511 Jefferson Ave. New Westminster, B.C.

SEEN RECENTLY

The letter was tabled Wednesday by Maurice J. Moreau (L—York—Scarborough), chairman of the elections committee, who said in an accompanying letter he did not see Mr. Brown's letter until March 8 of this year.

On that date, Mr. Moreau sent a copy of the Brown letter to Mr. Justice Nathaniel T. Nemetz of the B.C. Supreme Court, who was named by the federal government to conduct a judicial inquiry into alleged voter-rigging in several B.C. ridings in the 1963 federal election.

The Vancouver Province published articles alleging six unidentified Labor unions conspired to rig votes in favor of New Democratic candidates in several B.C. ridings. There are nine NDP members from B.C.

In a letter dated April 27, Mr. Brown said he had studied voters lists for all 22 federal constituencies in B.C. for 3,000 hours over a period of 13 months and found "startling facts."

The key portion of the five-page longhand letter read as follows:

"Poll one Burnaby-Coquitlam was duplicated elsewhere in B.C. to the extent of 40 per cent. The same area in the B.C. provincial election was duplicated elsewhere in B.C. to the extent of 40 per cent."

Egypt Ousted Him in 1952

Roly-Poly King Dies in Exile

From AP-Reuters

ROME (CP)—Ex-King Farouk of Egypt, a roly-poly, lush-living exile in the Roman dolce vita set, died Wednesday night after being stricken at dinner in a suburban restaurant, police reported. He was 45.

Aides at Rome's San Camillo Hospital said he was dead on arrival there after midnight.

There was no immediate word on the cause of death.

WITH A WOMAN

He had gone to the restaurant with a woman companion.

Farouk had lived and luxuriated in Italy most of the time since he was forced to abdicate and exiled in July 1952 by an Egyptian revolutionary officers' group.

RULED SINCE 1936

He had ruled since 1936 when, as a handsome boy of 16, he mounted the throne in Cairo to carry on the Mohammed Ali Dynasty that had been set up in the 19th century under the Ottoman Turks.

The 1952 revolution, headed by Maj.-Gen. Mohamed Naguib as the front man and master-minded by Lt.-Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, permitted him to name his only son, the Infant Fouad, as his successor.

But the monarchy soon was ended and Egypt became a republic—now called the United Arab Republic with Nasser as president.

'PRINCE CHARMING'

Scandals arising from the Arab defeat by the Israelis in the 1948 Palestine war led to Farouk's downfall.

Although only 45, he looked at least 15 years older.

Farouk was hailed as the "prince charming" who would bring salvation to his country when he ascended the throne.

FAROUK CHANGED

A monarch who squandered the prestige of a throne, he was an unpopular ruler by the time he was 30.

From a tall, handsome and intelligent youth he turned into a bulky and corpulent man, with sparse hair and had eyes perpetually shielded by dark glasses.

His personal failings were the main cause of his rapid decline in popularity and eventual downfall.

Embassy Razed

BONN (Reuters) — The West German foreign ministry said Wednesday demonstrators had burned down the West German Embassy in Tahrir, the capital of Yemen.

State Secretary Karl Carstens protested strongly and demanded punishment for the demonstrators and compensation.

River-Plug Project Shelled

DAMASCUS (AP) — Syria charged Wednesday that Israeli tanks and artillery intensively shelled a Syrian border area where a pan-Arab engineering operation was under way for diversion of the Jordan River tributaries.

In a communique an army spokesman said a Syrian tractor driver was killed and two civilians were wounded in the clash on the tense 70-mile armistice line.

Shelling came from "suddenly massed tanks and anti-tank batteries" in four Israeli settlements opposite the Syrian frontier, he said.

Vote Duplications Run High ated to the extent of 27.5 per cent.

"Twenty-five per cent of the names duplicated federally were also duplicated provincially and yet no one with whom I have discussed these facts has been alarmed."

NO ALLEGATION

Mr. Brown's letter did not allege that some persons voted more than once, which is illegal.

But the letter added:

"In every case but one (not poll one Burnaby - Coquitlam) the same political party easily won the polling divisions in which duplications were heavy. One particular poll was duplicated as high as 79.3 per cent."

"Why is this allowed? Why is it necessary for any person to have their name on two electoral lists?"

'LOOPHOLE'

The letter went on to argue against absentee voting on the grounds that it opens a "dangerous loophole" in election laws.

"I have had several communications with Mr. Nelson (longtime acting chief electoral officer and representation commissioner) and although he feels there is no cause for alarm I cannot help but be deeply disturbed and concerned with the large number of duplications of voters' names in two or more polling divisions and in alarming concentrations."

QUOTES RESOLUTION

Mr. Brown ended his letter by quoting a resolution on election laws passed in January, 1964, by the B.C. provincial Liberal party convention and offering to provide any additional information the committee might want.

The letter was acknowledged May 1, 1964, by Antonio Plouffe, MP, Gilbert R. (Shefford) and Raymond L. (Megantic).

'Fear, Inability Stop Reds'

when you look at the record," Mr. Taylor said. "For 10 years this country has been fighting to be free from Communism and from subversive insurgency encouraged by Hanoi. Look at the casualty figures . . . It's amazing that there haven't been greater indications of war-weariness."

On the calls for negotiations with the communists, Mr. Taylor said "presumably a negotiation can be successful if both sides have something to give, to concede. All this country is seeking is to be free, and one can hardly negotiate one's freedom."

Mr. Taylor said it was "militarily impossible" to check all infiltration from North Viet Nam, but there was no question that Hanoi could stop most of the fighting at once if it wanted to.

"So far as we can see, the control is absolute," he said. "The reaction to Hanoi direction is very quick and very effective, or has been thus far."

"Whether the 70,000 or 80,000 guerrillas in this country would all simultaneously lay down their arms if they were directed to do so by the north—obviously I can't be sure, but I am sure that the vast majority would, if concurrently it was apparent that Hanoi would give no further aid."

Williston Issues Revenue Challenge

Resources Minister Ray Williston challenged anybody Wednesday to produce "bona fide information" on which to base a proper investigation of charges that B.C. isn't getting enough revenues from its forests.

He was replying to a repeated charge by Gordon Gibson (L-North Vancouver) that the government had sold "the people's timber at over $500,000,000 too cheap" over the past decade.

Mr. Gibson said last year government forest revenues were little more than $30,000,000 while the users of this timber made profits before taxes of close to $400,000,000. Of this sum, $200,000,000 went to Ottawa.

Acquitted of Assault

City Driver 'Lucky' He's Not Jailed

A Victoria impaired driver was told Wednesday he was very fortunate he did not go to jail for assaulting a policeman during a 30-minute wait for a sobriety test March 2.

Peter D. Lubin, 22, of 3155 Somerset, was acquitted of the assault charge after a two-hour trial in city magistrate's court.

Lubin had earlier pleaded guilty to impaired driving and was fined $500 and barred from driving for a year.

REASONABLE DOUBT

Magistrate William Ostler dismissed the assault charge on the grounds there was a reasonable doubt Lubin had formed the intent to scratch Const. Gordon Bennett's face during a police station scuffle.

The magistrate said he was disturbed by police procedure in the case and criticized policemen for failing to tell Lubin at the place they picked him up that he was under arrest.

He also expressed concern that the obviously intoxicated and belligerent man was not placed in a cell to await the tests ("a padded cell if necessary") or at least kept in handcuffs.

PREVENTED ASSAULT

Either procedure would have prevented the assault, commented Mr. Ostler.

Lubin's fighting was clearly a withdrawal of his agreement to go to the police station, and police should have placed him formally under arrest for impaired driving at the time, said Magistrate Ostler.

Alcoholic Given Another Chance

An 18-month suspended sentence was ordered in Saanich magistrate's court Wednesday for an alcoholic who cashed another person's cheque.

Robert Pattison Heans was charged with uttering a forged document after he gave himself up to police earlier.

Defence counsel Ian Stewart said the man's act could be blamed on his alcoholism. He had given himself up when he realized what he had done.

"You have come to the end of the line," said Magistrate William Ostler before sentence. "Alcohol has cost you one career and a number of jobs, caused you to neglect your family and now has caused you to be convicted of an indictable offence."

Heans was also ordered to sign a $500 bond to keep the peace.

Second place went to Joseph Sutherland of 331 Toastmasters here. Both advance to the finals April 2 in St. John Ambulance Hall.

Nimkish Valley 'Preserve' MLA Charges

A major B.C. forest company regards the Nimkish Valley on upper Vancouver Island as its private preserve, Gordon Gibson (L-North Vancouver) charged in the legislature Wednesday.

Resources Minister Ray Williston said in reply that there are no independent loggers operating under the existing tree farm licence because sole means of transport in the area is a private logging railroad.

But he said the Nimkish Valley forests will soon be opened to small loggers with the expansion of the upper Island road system.

'MY VALLEY'

Mr. Gibson quoted Canadian Forest Products president Polie Bentley as telling the legislative committee on forestry last year: "Nimkish Valley is my valley—it is my timber—No man will get a contract to log it unless he does it cheaper than my costs."

Mr. Gibson attacked the government for releasing CFP from its forest management contract commitment in each of the last four years to allow small loggers to log 50 per cent of the annual cut of some 120,000 board feet taken from the area.

The minister, he charged, by agreeing to release CFP from the contract provision, had made the company "a lot of money" and denied small loggers a chance for profit.

'DON'T GO NEAR'

Mr. Gibson said he had witnessed a conversation with a contractor who had spent a lifetime logging on Vancouver Island. During the talk, the MLA said, he suggested that the contractor make application to log a section of the Nimkish Valley.

The contractor's own forester, who was in the group, was quoted by Mr. Gibson as saying: "Don't go near that—that's a preserve—no encroach on it and you'll lose every contract you've got with the big boys."

Mr. Gibson said: "There is fear here—it's like the black hand of the Mafia."

NO APPLICATIONS

He added that the tree farm licence granted to CFP in the Nimkish Valley four years ago could support "six good-size" contractors, each taking out 10,000,000 feet of lumber annually.

Mr. Williston replied that he believed the company of the contract provision because during this time not a single small logger had applied for a logging contract. The government received no complaints from would-be contractors, the minister said.

Under the present system, he said, any contractor who wished to operate in the Nimkish Valley would have to pay for shipment of supplies and equipment on the CFP logging trains.

This will change in the near future when roads are completed into the area covered by the tree farm licence, said Mr. Williston.

Avoid Roughage Foods To Calm Queasy Colon

By JOSEPH MOISNER, MD

Dear Dr. Moiser: Can anything be done to help colitis, other than to watch diet and avoid rough or irritating foods?

—L. N. A.

Yes, usually there are other things you can, and sometimes should, do to calm down a queasy colon.

Not all forms of colitis are the same. However, all of them require reasonable caution as to diet.

One of the most common is the spastic colon. Colitis is not an accurate description for it, since the "itis" implies inflammation, but let's not quibble over words.

The spastic colon is seen primarily in tense individuals. If they learn not to squander their nervous energy on things that don't really matter, and if they deliberately learn the art of relaxation at the end of a day's work they go a long way toward ending their trouble.

AVOID LAXATIVES

Another aspect of the same thing is irregular elimination, which in turn can be affected by irregular eating. Give your intestinal tract a break! Don't skip meals. Don't "eat and run." After a meal, allow some time to relax. And—this is important—don't use excessive doses of laxatives, because in varying degrees they will irritate the colon. That is what they are for—to instigate action by the bowel. Constant repetition of this can make any colon irritable—not to mention one which already has a tendency to go into spasm.

For some patients, mild sedatives are helpful. Mucous colitis, however, is another thing. Quite often some allergic condition is the basis. A useful step toward a cure is to seek out the foods which set off the allergy.

SERIOUS CONDITION

Ulcerative colitis is a more serious condition involving bloody diarrhea and ulceration of the colon. It needs very precise, specific treatment to prevent each case. If that's the kind of colitis you have in mind, you must already be under a physician's care and he is telling you what to do.

Still other forms of colitis are from a parasitic infection, the commonest being the amoeba. Fundamentally medication is required to get rid of the parasite, and then care must be exercised to avoid picking it up again.

In any of these forms of colon trouble, foods containing a high proportion of roughage must be avoided. Whatever the cause of the colitis, don't irritate the tender or sensitive or nervous colon unnecessarily.

But what you do, or what treatment you have, besides that, depends on the type of colitis involved.

Dear Dr. Moiser: I am 58 and had high blood pressure for several years but just didn't do anything about it. Last spring I went to the doctor and my pressure was 240. He put me on a very strict diet since I was much overweight. I lost 40 pounds and the pressure went down to near normal.

Lately, however, I had a little flare-up. I guess it was a very light stroke in my left arm and leg. Could this have been the result of losing so much weight?

—MRS. T. P.

On the contrary, losing that weight may have prevented the stroke from being more serious. If you haven't reported this to your doctor, do so immediately.

Dear Dr. Moiser: Recently I read in your column that a malignant tumor cannot be shrunk by treatments. Why? —MRS. H.A.

You didn't read any such thing in this column. Malignant tumors (cancer) often can be shrunk by X-ray treatment. Sometimes they can be entirely destroyed that way, just as they can sometimes be removed entirely by surgery. Complete destruction of the tumor means that the cancer is cured. Partial destruction is temporarily helpful.

Film Critic Adopted

PARIS (Reuters) — French writer Jean-Paul Sartre, 50, has formally adopted Miss Arlette El Kaim, 23-year-old film critic on the monthly review of which he is editor, Les Temps Modernes.

Gulls Get Message

North Surrey falconer George Galica, has offered to scare seagulls away from Seattle's Montlake Dump. He uses stuffed decoy gull on rope which he whips, then releases falcon which strikes down decoy. Action frightens real gulls away unharmed. Those in picture already have message, are heading "that-a-way." — (AP)

Mt. Kennedy Climb Set

WASHINGTON (AP) — The first attempt to scale the 13,900-foot Canadian peak named in honor of the late president John F. Kennedy — North America's highest unclimbed mountain — is about to begin.

The National Geographic Society announced Wednesday that four expert mountain climbers flew from Whitehorse, Yukon, to the mountain's south base Tuesday and will probably begin their ascent next week.

Keeps Voluntary Plan

Alberta to Fight Enforced Medicare

EDMONTON (CP) — The Alberta government will fight any attempt to set up a compulsory national health insurance plan in Canada, Dr. J. Donovan Ross, health minister, said Wednesday.

Dr. Ross said Alberta will stick to its voluntary health insurance plan and believes any national plan also should be voluntary rather than compulsory. The minister said that if the federal government insists on a compulsory national health scheme, it should allow provinces wanting to keep voluntary schemes to stay out of the national plan.

UP TO INDIVIDUAL

Under a voluntary health insurance scheme, such as that in Alberta, the government leaves up to the individual the decision whether to purchase a health insurance contract. The government provides subsidies for poorer persons wanting health insurance.

Under a compulsory plan such as that in Saskatchewan, all residents are compelled to purchase medical care insurance.

Green Sees Election This June

VANCOUVER (CP) — Howard Green, former external affairs minister in the Diefenbaker government, predicted Wednesday night there will be a federal election in June, and said he'll be in the running.

He told a group of UBC students he would run as a Progressive Conservative in his old riding of Vancouver Quadra.

Mr. Green said the main fight would be between Liberals and Conservatives and morality would be the main issue.

Vote Bill Sent to House

Fast Passage Likely

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Johnson sent the U.S. Congress his blueprint Wednesday to assure Negroes the voting rights for which they have been marching, praying and protesting. The legislation was immediately introduced in the House by Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the judiciary committee which process it for floor action.

Enactment this year appeared certain — especially since Senate leaders of both parties gave full approval in advance of the administration bill's provisions.

OTHER MEANS

Terms of the measure were worked out earlier Wednesday by Attorney-General Katzenbach, Senate Democratic leader Mike Mansfield and Senate GOP leader Everett Dirksen. The bipartisan support apparently lessened the chance of a southern filibuster.

In the Senate, the bill will go first to the judiciary committee, which is headed by James O. Eastland, the Mississippi Democrat. But if Sen. Eastland bottles it up, Sen. Dirksen has made clear that Senate leaders will use other means to get it to the Senate floor.

The measure carries with it the almost revolutionary possibility of, for example, a white southern sheriff depending on the votes of a large Negro local population to get elected.

Bias Charged By Ukrainians

MONTREAL (CP) — A delegation of Ukrainians contended Wednesday that people of their ethnic background are discriminated against in the field of Canadian government.

The delegation consisting of 10 men told the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism that there also may be discriminations against Ukrainians in business where promotions are concerned.

But they said such bias occurs mostly in government where

Wilson to Tackle 'Bland' Gromyko

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson is to step into Anglo-Russian talks today after two days of deadlock between the British and Soviet foreign ministers on major world issues including the fighting in Southeast Asia.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko, described as "friendly and rather bland" in his Tuesday negotiations with Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart, has relented on only one item.

He agreed with Stewart Wednesday that the Geneva conference on disarmament, in recess since September, should be resumed — despite Russian "doubts" — and promised to put forward later his views on timing.

Stewart and Gromyko apparently did not return Wednesday to the question of the Viet Nam fighting over which they hit a stone wall at their opening session Tuesday.

Wilson, however, is expected to raise the matter today on the basis of a British proposal, which is understood to envisage

An Odd Situation

THE PRESENT DAY descendants of the Afrikaner farmers who so dogmatically took on the whole British Empire between 1899 and 1902 have long made it clear that they hold as little regard for Britain as did their forebears.

The wounds of the Boer War have closed little over the years despite the fact that South Africa has now broken its once close ties with the British Crown and left the Commonwealth to establish itself as an independent republic determined to go its own way regardless of the opinion of the world.

Yet, for all this and for all the problems its unhappy racial policies raise both within and without its borders, South Africa still seems to possess a deep sense of history which appears at once to mark a distinct loyalty to the past and an appreciation of at least some of the old traditions and ideals.

Underlining this strange conflict of personality is the Nationalist government's strong feeling on the republic's flag—which consists of the Union Jack, representing the old British colonies of Natal and Cape Colony, and the flag of the former Boer republics of the Orange Free State and the Transvaal combined within a larger banner.

On Monday of this week Labor Minister Senator Alf Trollop publicly answered his own son's demand made at a political rally that the "miserable Union Jack should be ripped out of our flag" by stating that the South African government had no intention of changing the national flag.

How odd it is that Canada—which still claims loyalty to the Crown and is a member of the Commonwealth—should have followed the course advocated by Senator Trollop's son while the fiercely independent republic of South Africa who has cut her family ties with the Motherland should still fly the Union Jack with pride.

More Should Learn

AN UNIDENTIFIED neighbor gave the child mouth-to-mouth respiration until Saanich police arrived.

Thereafter a resuscitator crew and a team of St. Joseph's Hospital emergency personnel worked to save the life of two-year-old Anthony Giesbrecht who had been snatched from Prospect Lake by his mother, apparently drowned.

The fact that he revived temporarily, though in the end the battle was lost, is probably due to the actions of that "unidentified neighbor" who knew what to do in the emergency.

The tragedy points up the need for wider instruction in methods of resuscitation, indeed, of life-saving generally. At this time of year lessons learned from willing instructors will not be forgotten when the bathing and boating season is at its height. In fact, such lessons last a lifetime.

Organizations like the St. John Ambulance Association, the Red Cross and, notably, the navy's command fire department are prepared to give voluntary instruction to any group which applies for it. They have trained hundreds. But there can never be too many with the knowledge which may save a life.

Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation is only one means of reviving a patient. Sometimes it can be dangerous. There are alternatives, like the Holgar-Neilsen and Sylvester methods, the latter requiring two workers, one to massage the heart, the other to work on the ventilation of the lungs. Even children can be taught.

The thought immediately suggests the desirability of taking instruction in the schools. Certain of them have taken advantage of the voluntary demonstrations and lectures in the past, notably in Oak Bay. But the program should be a continuing one to be effective, and a broadening one to include the greatest possible number, not only in schools, but in any group which feels it has the time to take the course seriously and the will to absorb it.

When instructors are willing to give their time in such a cause it would seem extraordinary if the public were not enthusiastic to receive it.

Happy Reconciliation

ON the grounds that it is a Christian tenet to forgive one's enemies and forget the past, most people will be glad that the royal family rift with the Duchess of Windsor now appears to have ended.

It is over 30 years since the former Mrs. Simpson married the Duke of Windsor, and during that long time there have been no contacts between her and leading members of the royal family.

While there is no doubt that the royal antipathy to the Duchess was less a personal and more a state matter, with the church and government playing an important part in the estrangement, it has been a long and trying break and hardly one which, on humanitarian grounds, could be excused.

Even the Duke himself has seen members of his family only on rare occasions and there is no doubt that both he and his Duchess have nobly played their promised part of non-interference in any way with the affairs of Britain and its ruling house.

Despite their many acquaintances they have probably been the loneliest pair of nobilities of the century, particularly during the trying war years.

With the Duke lying seriously ill and in danger of losing his sight, there will be admiration for the Queen's belated gesture in going to the bedside of her favorite uncle, and at the same time meeting deliberately, the aunt she had never encountered.

For the aging couple it must have been a notable moment of reconciliation.

Unyielding Attitude

Dr. Verwoerd's Winning Strategy

By STANLEY URS from Cape Town

IT would not be strictly true to say that South Africa's three million whites were relieved to read that the United Nations, once again, had failed to reach agreement over apartheid. They were never really perturbed in the first place.

Apartheid has been under discussion at the UN for so long now, with unanimity always out of reach, that the average white South African now believes in the inevitability of the Verwoerd regime.

The western nations have come to the assistance of South Africa so frequently that it seems to the ordinary South African that they will always do so, and that if South Africa ultimately goes down, the West will go down with it.

The recent deliberations of the Security Council committee of experts on the application of sanctions against South Africa are quoted by government and Opposition politicians in Parliament as proof of the contention that, outside of the Afro-Asian-Communist bloc, South Africa has nothing to fear internationally.

The members of the committee were economic and legal experts of the U.S., Britain, the Soviet Union, China, Norway, Bolivia, Brazil, the Ivory Coast, Morocco and Czechoslovakia. With France, which declined, without explanation, to take part, they comprised the Security Council's membership last year.

The committee split three ways. It threw out the drastic recommendations of Russia and Czechoslovakia, voted down a motion-tough draft offered by the Ivory Coast and Morocco, and adopted conclusions submitted by Bolivia and Brazil which made two main points: (a) that South Africa would not be readily susceptible to economic measures, although she was not immune to damage from such measures; (b) that the degree of effectiveness of such measures would directly depend on the universality of their application and on the manner and the duration of their enforcement.

This is as far as most white South Africans are inclined to read. It seems to them to be the deadlock as before. They regard the committee's findings—to quote a leading Opposition newspaper—as "a major event in South Africa's favor and a severe blow to the international boycott movement."

More detailed comments have been made by a government member of Parliament, Mr. Paul van der Merwe, whose special study is international affairs. He suggested that the French boycott of the committee indicated she would veto any Security Council decision to impose sanctions. He added that when the report is presented to the security Council, the U.S. and Britain will be compelled finally to take a stand on the issue—and Mr. van der Merwe appears to have no doubt that these two Western leaders will agree that sanctions are impracticable.

Some observers in South Africa go so far as to suggest that, "after years of extravagant talk about sanctions, the U.S. and Britain used the committee as a means of compelling the Afro-Asian and Communist states to face the realities of taking such a step."

These observers quote the remarks which the British delegate, Sir Roger Jackling, was understood to have addressed to the committee during its closed-door hearings, namely, that it might take two or three years for economic measures to make any appreciable impact, and in the meantime it would cost up to $300 million to impose a naval blockade, plus several hundred million dollars for air control.

And even then the debt-ridden UN could not guarantee a total quarantine, because South Africa might obtain supplies through the Portuguese territories of Angola and Mozambique, unless Portugal also agreed to observe the embargo.

Not all white South Africans take this sanguine view. The Opposition Cape Times, while welcoming the non-committal findings of the committee of experts and observing that an unsuccessful sanctions move could "merely have made apartheid seem heroic rather than the absurd policy it is daily and increasingly becoming," stated:

"It is also necessary for us to realize that the experts' decision does not mean any condon-ation of South Africa's race policies... The fact that UN has got a committee of experts to go into the question of sanctions at all is a warning sign of the growing pressure in the world for something to be done about race policies which are clearly regarded internationally as oppressive and uncivilized."

"Practically all nations in the world believe that our race policies are humanly oppressive and degrading. But this is also the opinion of most of our non-white citizens in South Africa, and it will eventually be that of most of the whites as well. When the continued and resolute political struggle in our country brings home this realization to the majority of our voters again, the threat of internal revolution, of blood-baths and of sanctions will vanish."

Here, then, is the view of an important Opposition newspaper. It dislikes apartheid intensely, but it believes that South Africa should be left to sort out its own affairs.

While it is safe to assume that most of South Africa's three million whites are opposed to sanctions, it is impossible to guess what is going on in the minds of the 14 million non-whites. An efficient security police force has brought their major political organizations to a standstill, and the customary channels of expression are closed. In any event, it would be hazardous for any individual South African publicly to advocate the imposition of sanctions against his own country.

For Dr. Verwoerd's government this state of deadlock internationally over apartheid is not accidental; it is the outcome of South Africa's persistent refusal to fashion its policies according to patterns prescribed for it at the United Nations. Dr. Verwoerd has played it tough, and so far he has got away with it.

What Dr. Verwoerd has done, in effect, is to adopt such an unyielding attitude that he has convinced the West, if not the world, that South Africa will mobilize all its formidable resources to ensure that its apartheid policies survive. In other words, if the diplomats at the United Nations wish to change apartheid they will not do so by whispering cautionary words in the ear of the South African delegate, but only by practically declaring war on South Africa. They should, therefore, attempt neither.

The essence of Dr. Verwoerd's strategy has been to inform the nations at the United Nations of the enormity of the task they will face if they try to meddle with apartheid. It was at this obstacle that the sanctions campaign foundered.

South Africa is a modern industrial state, and Dr. Verwoerd's point is that the imposition of sanctions against such a state in this modern age would be almost equivalent to a declaration of war—a non-killing war, but nevertheless a war in its international complications, in the future relations between South Africa and the world, and in the personal bitterness of the defeated South African whites.

So white South Africa, convinced that the imposition of sanctions is too big an undertaking even for the United Nations, proceeds relatively unperturbed. For 17 years its apartheid government has fought off all attacks, and although it is bruised and isolated, South Africa still does not show the slightest sign of yielding to any pressure, internal or external.

Indeed, at the moment there appear to be no major internal pressures at all. The lid is tightly screwed down.

Washington Calling

In the Storm's Eye

By MARQUIS CHILDS

IN the heat and dust of battle the peacemaker who stands between the two lines is likely to be shot at from both sides. That was the difficult role of LeRoy Collins in the uneasy truce at Selma, Ala.

His title is director of the Federal Community Relations Service, an office created under the Civil Rights Act passed last year. That innocent sounding bureaucratic description hardly fits either the man or the job. But so closely are the two linked together—the temperament of the man and the constant demands of an all but impossible office—that no conventional job description would fit.

Collins' immediate objective at Selma was to prevent wholesale bloodshed after the police brutality which shocked the nation. The goal beyond the burning, explosive crisis was to see that the Civil Rights Act is enforced. That has been true in the 100 or more cases the Community Relations Service has handled since its creation last July.

Those who have watched him at work believe that President Johnson could hardly have found a man better equipped for the assignment. A Southerner, a two-term governor of Florida, he has a compassionate understanding of the problem of integration as it affects both the South and the North and, above all, the Negro. Slow-spoken, almost courtly in manner, he has the two qualities needed to stand resolute in the eye of the storm—patience and an unshakable calm.

What distressed his associates about the reports out of Selma was the implication that he had been sent there by the president with a prearranged plan to get a compromise deal between the white law enforcement officers and the civil rights demonstrators. That was not true, they say. He exercised the broad mandate that goes with the office to work with all elements so that a peaceful solution might come out of what threatened from moment to moment to be civil war.

The testimony of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. in federal court in Montgomery showed how the compromise was worked out. King could not accept less than a march however curtailed. The state troopers acting under orders of Gov. George Wallace would not back down on the edict against marching on the highway. The danger, as both King and Collins were only too well aware, was that the restless and impatient younger Negroes would be unwilling to accept restraint.

This has remained the pre-eminent danger in the aftermath of the disillusion of many civil rights leaders with what they feel was the president's "too little and too late" reaction to Selma. On the other hand, undisciplined sit-ins by irresponsible demonstrators, such as the one in the White House corridor, stiffen resistance to the Negro cause.

Selma is by no means the first perilous situation in which Collins has found himself between the lines. His first assignment was in St. Helena's Parish in Louisiana where opposition to school desegregation had created a threat of violence. Under the Civil Rights Act a federal judge can refer to the Community Relations Service any menacing disorder resulting from a judicial finding.

This makes Collins a firefighter subject to the alarm call whenever it rings. But he has stressed fire prevention, trying to work out solutions before the flames leap up. The suspicion of Negro groups was that he meant to be an instrument of delay. He has worked hard to overcome that suspicion, stressing at every opportunity the fact of the law and compliance with its provisions.

The community relations provision was put in the act by conservative Southerners. They were aware of the shock effect of desegregation in the Deep South and they wanted to cushion it with education and understanding. The agency today has a staff of 26 professional people and 25 on the clerical-typist side. Unable to persuade certain of the specialists to come with him full time, Collins has contracted with them for emergency service for limited periods. Thus he gets the help of the ablest brains in the field of race relations.

But inevitably the heaviest burden falls on him. He works normally a 15-hour day. And under the gun as in Selma he knows what it means to labor around the clock. He had left Selma for Gainesville, Fla., to make a long scheduled speech at the University of Florida when word reached him of tension growing around the murderous attack on the Rev. James J. Reeb, the Boston minister who had come with hundreds of other clergymen to demonstrate. Collins cancelled the speech and flew back to Alabama.

His life was not always so full of strain and stress. Leaving the governor's office in Tallahassee he became president of the National Association of Broadcasters with a salary of $75,000 and expense account of $25,000. His government salary is $27,500, and the dedicated men and women who work with him will attest that he earns it many times over.

Playing of 'O Canada'

I HAVE noted your description of our Canadian national anthem, "O Canada," and your opinions thereon.

I respectfully remind you the leader of a band, orchestra or singing group sets the tempo, "the proper or characteristic speed of movement" and, by signs, the volume of tone required from the singers and musicians.

This being true it could suggest our leaders of orchestras and bands are not disposed to think of "O Canada" as I do and they might not desire to inspire the singers, players and listeners with the verve and enthusiasm our Canadian anthem deserves.

Only once in my long life have I heard "O Canada" played as it should be. This treat was performed about ten years ago in the Arena by the Salvation Army Staff Band from London, England, composed mostly of Englishmen.

Perils

I have read your editorial "Perils of Living," and gather that you feel impelled to justify the smoking habit by comparing it with other "dangerous habits," such as over-eating, over-work, burning the candle at both ends by staying up late at night, etc. The latter is usually closely associated with cigarette smoking with probably the addition of some alcohol. There is such effects do not appear to injure society as a whole to the extent that alcohol and tobacco do.

Tobacco contains, as you know, the drug nicotine, and this enters the blood of the victim and so distributes itself throughout the human bodily system and where married women are concerned, the effects on newborn children is definitely injurious. The drug in tobacco is the main cause of addiction, because no sane person would fill their mouths and lungs with smoke without strong compulsion. In the case of alcohol those addicted lose the power to reason normally, and do things that are dangerous both to themselves and others, and finally if the habit is not arrested consequences become serious.

The power behind the smoking habit is mainly expert propaganda by prosperous tobacco firms, who have millions of money at their disposal. These bad habits are associated with the fine things of nature, great athletes and attractive women. The large sum distributed through advertising has the tendency to make newspaper proprietors loath to refuse the revenues that accrue.

Young married couples with limited incomes often find their finances seriously handicapped when their habits include joint cigarette smoking, $300 per annum is quite a normal sum to spend.

Anything that can be done to preserve our people from being the victims of this mass propaganda to injure themselves and their children, merits support.

Treasures

A notice of a thousand-year-old spruce "dropped" by a timber company was in the press lately. It was said the tree was 11 feet across at the widest part of the butt and that it was 230 feet tall.

To most people such a tree is a magnificent sight. Many people would treasure such a tree.

It stood in one of the many gulches between Jordan River and Port Renfrew, an area with easy driving of Victoria.

Surely the government should take steps to preserve groves of trees. Only government action will make this possible.

Some will yell at the expense. This tree, it is stated, "is worth close to $3,000 in lumber, containing about 22,000 board feet."

But, of course, the profit to the owner of the tree is only a small fraction of the $3,000 quoted, and this small fraction is the price the government should rightly pay. True, to ensure a tree standing, the government will have to buy a grove of several acres.

But the whole grove is only worth a small sum to the owners of the trees because most of the $3,000 of the tree's value goes in wages of fallers, buckers, baulers and sawmill workers.

Would it not be worth more to the people of this island and nation to preserve such glorious groves and thereby attract our pleasure seeking neighbors to the south, in their millions and with their great wealth.

Personally I have long felt, and advocated here and there, that all these superb groves, which run into the Pacific from the highlands on the island, be at least inspected and the best of them kept to preserve the beauty of part of the island.

Some fine things, in this way, have been done, namely the preservation of MacMillan Grove.

Pensions

The Senior Women's Committee for Pension Increase is pleased that the prime minister has recognized the need to lower the pension age to 65 by 1970, but this by no means solves the problem of the present senior citizens.

Thousands of letters from all provinces tell us of the heart-break of those compelled to retire at 60 or 65 with an inadequate pension or none at all and all dread the means test.

The high rising cost of living (1.9 in November) hits hard at those forced to exist on the present pension of $75 a month for whom no relief is promised, although all parties have expressed their support in Parliament for an immediate raise to $100. Therefore, taking into account the urgent need of those 65 and over, we urge that a free vote be taken in Parliament to raise the basic pension to $100 a month at 65 in '68, to be included in the next federal budget.

Ivan Maisky Adds Page to History

By PETER WORTHINGTON, from Moscow

Publishing memoirs and reminiscences isn't confined to old soldiers and statesmen of the West.

One of the recent writers in this line is Ivan Maisky, Russia's ambassador to Britain from 1932 to 1943, now retired with honor and living by the Black Sea.

Immensely popular in Britain during the war, a frequent speaker at functions and something of a BBC performer, Maisky is now 80. He had surprising influence with the British government and advised Churchill—through then-foreign Secretary Anthony Eden—on speeches involving Russia during the war.

Maisky recently wrote a 53-page flashback on the war years for Novy Mir, the top literary and relatively liberal magazine of the Soviet Union.

He details the first six months after Hitler attacked Russia on June 22, 1941, and outlines Churchill's distrust and dislike of Russia, and the personality clash between Stalin and Churchill.

According to Maisky, one of the heroes of smoothing relations between Churchill and Stalin, and of promoting co-operation and understanding between reluctant allies, was Lord Beaverbrook.

The first news of impending invasion against Russia was told to Ambassador Maisky by Stafford Cripps, then-British ambassador to the USSR who had been recalled to London.

"Remember, I have repeatedly

Churchill Complies

He visited Eden who told him Britain would help Russia against the common foe. Maisky urged that Churchill, in his speeches, affirm most strongly that Britain wouldn't make a separate peace with Germany and would materially aid Russia. He says Russia feared Britain would negotiate a separate peace with Germany.

Churchill complied and vowed to destroy Hitler.

Maisky urged a second front immediately, to take the pressure off Russia. But Churchill refused to consider the idea.

Maisky didn't know who to see about second front plans. Knowing Churchill's reluctance, he decided against talking to Eden who, he said, "was too strongly influenced by the prime minister and would hardly venture to oppose him."

Instead he went to see Lord Beaverbrook, "a bold and independent man."

Beaverbrook appreciated the theory but expressed fear that Russia would collapse quickly against Germany.

No Time for Visas

Maisky urged that Hopkins go to Moscow and see for himself what was needed, and also to meet Stalin. Hopkins consulted Roosevelt and a quick trip to Moscow was arranged. There was no time for visas, so Ambassador Maisky saw a passport and notified Moscow.

The 24-hour flight by Catalina flying boat over the top of Norway took much out of the sickly Hopkins, but the results were enormous. At the Churchill-Roosevelt Atlantic conference on Aug. 15, 1941, Hopkins' findings were discussed.

"This is how for the first time in the course of the war I understood from practical experience the significance of a chain reaction in politics—though at the time this term wasn't yet in vogue," says Maisky.

Hopkins once told Maisky "I am on leave from death." and is remembered as: "Among the leading personalities of the bourgeois world during the second world war."

Maisky says the War Office

Eden in Moscow

In December, 1941, Anthony Eden went to Moscow. In order to set a friendly climate Churchill agreed to declare war on Finland, Rumania and Hungary, who were fighting Russia.

Maisky accompanied Eden on the cruiser Kent which dashed unescorted to the Baltic Sea to Murmansk. En route Japan attacked Pearl Harbor.

At the outset of talks Stalin insisted that Britain agree that the boundaries of Russia should be what they were prior to Germany's invasion.

Eden agreed in principle. But Stalin started everyone by pulling a treaty to be signed. Eden coldly refused.

"Tactically its presentation at that moment was a serious mistake," says Maisky. "I don't know what motives Stalin was guided by, but the action worsened the situation."

Maisky tried to convince Stalin that it was unnecessary to have Eden sign that pre-war boundaries would be recognized. Stalin refused.

"Eden replied that the British government couldn't sign and

When Eden recovered, Stalin was grinning even more. "Only a strong people can drink such a beverage," said Stalin. "Hitler is beginning to find out!"

Water Key to Solution

Is There Time To Avert Famine?

By WILLIAM L. RYAN

Modern technology knows how to turn back the menacing spectre of widespread famine. The big question is this: Is there time?

Western scientists consider the problem urgent. Many think the application of wide-ranging technology—increasing fresh water supplies, reclaiming land destroyed by man's waste and avarice, and to closing the "protein gap"—offer hope for the future.

Time, the experts stress, is the critical element. They add that consequences to northern civilization can be extremely costly if the famine menace in the hungry world is not averted.

Blessed by abundance, people in the rich North Atlantic world seldom ponder how precious a commodity is water, how much is needed to produce food.

Prof. J. R. A. Macmillan, dean of the agriculture faculty at Sydney (Australia) University, estimates it takes a ton of water to produce one egg; 25 tons for a loaf of bread; 15 tons for a gallon of milk; by the time all the natural processes are completed.

Only about 3,300,000,000 acres in the world produce food. It requires half an acre to feed one person at subsistence level. The margin is slim and grows slimmer as population increases by 180,000 a day.

Underdeveloped areas have billions of arid acres. A little moisture could make much difference. There is moisture under the sand, but winds shift it too much to permit vegetation to take hold. Test areas are being coated with a petroleum product to hold sand in place until vegetation can reach the moisture-bearing soil and take root. Potentially, the deserts can bloom.

The industry is working on rainmaking.

Such processes as desalting water by atomic or other means, remain expensive, but are the sources of rising hopes.

Micro-organisms, when fed selected hydrocarbons of high purity, flourish and reproduce. These are killed and dried, transformed into a white powder like dried milk, virtually tasteless. This, scientists say, can be used as an additive in many foods.

It is described as high in protein content, containing substantial quantities of B vitamins and all the essential amino acids for animal or human nutrition.

Scientists say the process can produce protein 2,500 times as fast as plants and animals at 1/15 or less the cost of meat proteins. The supply could be almost limitless. Scientists say 3,000,000 tons of protein can be produced from one per cent of the present paraffinic crude oil production. Thus, the process could go a long way toward closing the "protein gap."

The process has been tested on animals, found safe and highly nutritious. It needs approval by governments for human use, plus acceptance abroad of an unfamiliar product, always a problem in poor than in developed areas.

U.K. Doctors Postpone Strike Date

LONDON (UPI)—Britain's family doctors reached an uneasy truce with the government Wednesday night in their battle for pay increases and reduced patient loads.

The powerful British Medical Association and the Medical Practitioners Union gave the government an extra three months to meet their demands. Informal sources said the Labor cabinet was preparing an emergency plan to protect patients if Britain's 23,000 doctors walked out.

NORTH VANCOUVER (UPI)—North Vancouver City's 168 inside and outside workers have agreed to a conciliation officer's recommendation for a five-per-cent, across-the-board wage increase for 1965 in a one-year contract.

The agreement will raise the basic wage for laborers to $2.30 from $2.18 an hour.

DEW Line Cuts Mirror Thaw

By FRANK MACOMBER

The U.S. Navy is pulling its radar ships and aircraft out of the North American air defence early warning system, on the grounds that the threat of an attack by Russian bombers has diminished considerably in the last few months.

The United States is closing the Atlantic and Pacific seaward extensions of the Distant Early Warning (DEW) Line and abolishing what is called the "contiguous barrier patrol" off the east and west coasts of the United States.

The shutdown will be completed late this year. Naval aircraft man the DEW extensions. Picket ships patrol the barrier off each coast. Their air-surveillance information is fed into NORAD at Colorado Springs, Colo.

Quotes!

Television has brought back murder into the home—where it belongs.—Alfred Hitchcock.

I loathe the pursuit of power—and most of the people who pursue it.—John Freeman.

U.S. Defence Department officials say the cutback in the DEW line comes "in view of the declining nature of the manned bombing threat and in the light of technological advances, and the reduction comes as part of the program of continued review of existing forces and operations to insure maximum defence with minimum costs."

It is estimated the cutback will save the taxpayers of the United States and Canada $69,000,000 in the next fiscal year. And it will mean about 9,000 officers and men will be reassigned to other duties.

Cyprus Pot Still Boiling

By CARMAN CUMMING
From United Nations

The last colonial Governor of Cyprus, Sir Hugh Foot, once quoted two rules-of-thumb about the troubled island:

● What you expect to happen won't.

● Anyone who understands the situation is misinformed.

Events of the last few days seem to show there is more truth than whimsy to the sayings.

On Cyprus, the sayings have been borne out by an eruption of fighting that has brought a new flurry of threats, charges, tension and troop movements.

And at the UN there is frustration that after a full year's work and the outlay of upwards of $30,000,000, the island still isn't ready for peace.

Diplomats growl privately that Cyprus is impossible to figure out, and that it seems intent on its own destruction. There is an Alice-in-Wonderland quality about some reports coming back from the international force—including 1,100 Canadians—that is trying to keep order.

One incident alone, told in dry official language in a report by the secretary-general, shows the kind of thing the force has had to face.

It took place Jan. 9 in Kouklia, a village in the Paphos district where feuding Greek and Turk still live side-by-side.

The report said shooting was heard in the village and a UN patrol "hastened to the spot," where it found that the Greek-Cypriot National Guard and police on one hand and the Turkish-Cypriot villagers on the other hand, were "manning their trenches in an ugly mood."

Each side maintained the other had fired hundreds of shots. Villagers have contradictory reports on how the incident started, but "all agreed there had been an explosion and that the Turkish-Cypriot coffee shop had been damaged."

UN police (UNCIVPOL) were called in to investigate, and "both sides reacted to the situation in characteristic fashion by starting to dig trenches all over the place." It took the UN six days to get them to stop, but eventually the situation cooled off.

Meanwhile, the UNCIVPOL investigation revealed that the trouble had started with some Greek-Cypriot police having a handy party about 50 yards from the Turkish-Cypriot coffee shop," the report said.

"One of the revelers had lighted a home-made bomb, which had gone off. Both communities reacted to the explosion by assuming that the other side had attacked them and fired back wildly. A United Nations patrol is still in the village."

UN reports are sprinkled with this kind of incident—like in that they flared up quickly in the explosive atmosphere and might have caused bigger trouble but for the UN.

A UN presence probably will be needed for some time—unless Cyprus provides the stunningly unexpected and decides that peace might be better after all.

Wife Shoots Mirror

NEW YORK — Singer Billy Daniels' pretty blonde Montreal-born wife, Perette, faces criminal charges because she shot out a mirror in the foyer of her apartment. The incident occurred after she confronted her husband and a red-haired beauty in the apartment.

Mrs. Daniels, 32, said the gun just happened to go off while she was trying to unload it. Police held her for arraignment on illegal possession of gun charges and felonious assault.

Mrs. Daniels returned to the apartment and found her husband in the company of showgirl Liza Minnelli, 26.

Mrs. Daniels pulled a .22 calibre pistol and ordered the couple into a back room of the suite, police said.

Tipped by an anonymous telephone call, police came to the apartment and were talking to Daniels and Liza Minnelli in a bedroom when a shot rang out in the foyer.

Rushing to investigate, patrolmen found a shattered mirror on the floor and a pistol in Mrs. Daniels' hand.

LONDON — Princess Mary, the Princess Royal, has visited the Duke and Duchess of Windsor at the London clinic, where the duke is recovering from eye operations.

The princess, who is a sister of the duke, spent about 40 minutes at the clinic.

DETROIT — An elderly widow turned herself into a human torch on a busy street corner, leaving a lengthy note saying she had "chosen the flaming death of the Buddhists" as a protest to American policies in Viet Nam. Mrs. Alice Herz, who fled Nazi Germany in 1933, was in critical condition.

Mock War Starts Today

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — U.S. Navy and Thai ships began moving into position Wednesday for operation Jungle Drum III, a joint manoeuvre to test the guerrilla warfare capability of 12,000 marines from both countries.

The operation, starting today, will be watched by the Communist nations as well as the West as a possible preview of things to come.

REGINA — Chief Justice E. M. Calliton of the Saskatchewan Court of Appeal has reserved judgment on the appeal of Dr. M. C. Shumacher, Regina lawyer, against his conviction and three year sentence on a charge of conspiring to defraud the public.

LONDON — Dr. Albert Schweitzer, the 90-year-old founder of the famous jungle hospital at Lambarene, Gabon, has appointed his own successor, the British doctor's weekly newspaper Medical News reports. The man he has chosen to succeed as medical director of the equatorial leper colony is Dr. Walter Munn, a 31-year-old Swiss, the newspaper says.

Racing Wire Installed In Palace

LONDON (UPI) — Queen Mother Elizabeth, one of Britain's leading racehorse owners, has had a race commentary service installed in her home, it was disclosed Wednesday. Most of the other customers are bookies.

The Queen Mother leads Britain's stables with the number of winners this year—22—and her horse The Rip is the co-favorite for the Grand National on March 27.

The Queen Mother's 19 horses have won $28,500 in prize money this year.

Real Space Pilot For First Time

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP)—U.S. astronaut Virgil (Gus) Grissom is about to become the first Buck Rogers of the space age.

If no hitches develop in his Gemini launch, scheduled for next Tuesday, Grissom will be the first space traveller, either American or Russian, to control the flight of his space ship.

Grissom will drive the two-seater spacecraft across the heavens, actually changing its orbital path. Other U.S. astronauts have been able to control the attitudes of their vehicles, but not the orbit.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration Wednesday outlined details of the mission, which will be the first manned flight of the Gemini program.

FIND THE BUGS

Grissom's co-pilot on the three-orbit trip will be navy Lt.-Cmdr. John W. Young, 34. The four-hour, 52-minute flight is to grind out the bugs in the two-seater spacecraft if preparation for the long-duration and rendezvous missions planned for Gemini in months to come.

HIS SECOND TRIP

Grissom, 39 April 3, will have the unique distinction of being the first person with two space trips.

None of the other 14 persons shot aloft has made a second flight. Grissom was the second American in space, flying a suborbital path July 21, 1961.

EARLIER FLIGHTS

None of the first 15 had much to say where he was going, or where he would land either.

The nine Russians and six Americans were, in a sense, "just along for the ride." Ground crews controlled the flights from lift-off to landing.

TRICKY MANOEUVRES

But Grissom will make tricky manoeuvres in space that will change his orbital path four times. He will guide the spacecraft much like the comic strip character Buck Rogers pilots his space ship from planet to planet.

NASA said Tuesday the name of the spacecraft will be Gemini III—standing for the third flight in the program. The first two were not manned.

WILL PICK LANDING SPOT

Grissom, who will control the 7,000-pound spacecraft for all but 20 minutes of the flight, will be able to pick his own landing spot and with the help of a small, on-board computer guide the capsule to a landing about 70 miles northeast of Grand Turk Island.

The flight primarily is to gather engineering data and the three scientific experiments planned will require less than seven minutes of the astronaut's time.

WILL 'FLY' SPACECRAFT

Grissom will "fly" the spacecraft by using tiny rocket engines called thrusters.

Backup crew for the flight is navy Cmdr. Walter M. Schirra Jr. and air force Major Thomas P. Stafford.

It will be the first U.S. manned flight in nearly two years.

Man Riddled In Car Shooting

MONTREAL (CP)—One man was killed and another severely wounded in a gangland-style shooting early Wednesday.

Laurier LaBelle, 23, was killed by five bullets while Tony Callabro, 31, a tavern waiter, was hit three times. He is in satisfactory condition in hospital.

Age-Old Ceremony By Rosicrucians Greets New Year

A ceremony first performed in the Valley of the Nile 3,000 years ago will be repeated Sunday in Victoria.

Victoria Rosicrucians will celebrate New Year's Day as the sun enters the zodiacal sign of Aries.

Mrs. Beatrice Emerson, Master of the Rosicrucian Victoria Pronaos, says the coming of the new year will be celebrated by a symbolic feast in which the participants eat simple foods corresponding to certain basic elements of nature.

FROM EGYPTIANS

According to Rosicrucian tradition, the custom of celebrating New Year's Day in March was passed down through the ages from the ancient Egyptians.

Members of the Rosicrucian Order claim it was founded during the reign of Amenhotep IV, in 1350 B.C.

A non-religious but philosophical organization, the order commemorates its founding with a ceremony which, according to Mrs. Emerson, "embraces the allegorical significance of the age-old Egyptian rites."

FISCAL YEAR

Sunday is also the beginning of the fiscal year for all Rosicrucian lodges, chapters, and pronaos throughout the world.

The date is marked by the installation of new ritualistic and administrative officers.

New officers of the Victoria Rosicrucian organization are Mrs. A. G. Eburne, secretary, and Mrs. R. H. Ridley, guardian. The ceremony and conclave is to be held at the Dominion Hotel on Yates Street.

Quentin Reynolds Dies in Sleep

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (AP)—Quentin Reynolds, Second World War correspondent and author, died in his sleep Wednesday at Travis Air Force Base Station Hospital. He was 62.

Reynolds was stricken at Manila last week and was flown to the U.S. Tuesday.

Reynolds, who started his career as a sports writer on the old New York World, gained wide acclaim for his Collier's magazine reporting in the Second World War, covering the London blitz, the D-Day raid, the North African campaign and the Salerno invasion.

Among his fellow correspondents were Westbrook Pegler and Heywood Brown. In later years the three were to become involved in bitter personal squabbles that led to a celebrated libel suit by Reynolds against Pegler.

Reynolds won a $175,000 judgment against Pegler, who had called him a coward and an absentee war correspondent.

MLA Proposal

Crown Authority Urged for Buses

A Crown corporation should be formed to operate transit systems in Victoria and Vancouver, Victoria Social Credit MLA J. Donald Smith proposed in the legislature Wednesday.

Mr. Smith called the present transit operation in the two areas a "lame-duck situation" because the cities are still wondering whether they'll be taking over the system within two or three years.

The government has not yet disclosed whether B.C. Hydro will renew franchise agreements in the two centres when they expire in 1966 and '67.

Municipal contributions to the new Crown corporation could be about 10 per cent of the system's deficit, Mr. Smith suggested.

The cities would then take an active interest in the transit system and thereby improve its public relations which now are "very poor."

"People show animosity toward our own bus system," Mr. Smith explained.

He also suggested the board of directors of the proposed Crown corporation include union bus drivers from Vancouver and Victoria.

In addition, Mr. Smith presented Resources Minister Williston, who, along with Recreation Minister Kiernan, is a director of B.C. Hydro, with a 5,000-name petition seeking bus passes for old-age pensioners.

The Victoria member asked Mr. Williston to put a price on the annual passes.

Mr. Williston replied that hydro policies are decided by Premier Bennett or the co-chairmen and not himself.

Doctor Attacks Jubilee Ban

'Discrimination' Charge Hurlled at Hospital Act

By BOB PETHICK

Charges that the Royal Jubilee Hospital 'Act' discriminates against doctors were levelled at the annual meeting of the hospital Wednesday night.

The Jubilee board was accused of lack of leadership and lack of policy by Dr. G. Scott Wallace. Dr. Wallace said that, under the present Royal Jubilee Hospital Act, doctors were not permitted to stand for one of the four elected positions on the 12-man board.

He urged that the board begin negotiations immediately with the provincial government to amend the act.

The amendment would make licensed physicians in this area eligible for nomination to the Jubilee board at annual meetings.

Dr. Wallace said he might have a close and detailed knowledge of patient care and patient needs and are surely in a position to contribute greatly to board planning and policy.

Resolution Passes

The meeting passed the resolution by a large majority.

Dr. Wallace said doctors were taxpayers whose taxes helped pay for operating expenses of the hospital and whose donations have contributed handsomely to hospital expansion.

At present the chief of medical staff, Dr. D. M. Whately, has a vote on the board. Two other doctors sit on the board but have no vote.

Dr. Wallace touched off a demand by board chairman Joseph Casey for an apology when he suggested municipalities consider their choice of representatives, adding attendance at meetings was not all it might be.

Dr. Wallace said he might have phrased his remarks better.

but he had the best interests of the hospital at heart.

He said the gains claimed by the board in the annual report were due largely to independent action taken by Dr. Whately last year.

Dr. Wallace said he might have a close and detailed knowledge of patient care and patient needs and are surely in a position to contribute greatly to board planning and policy.

Psychologist Gaddes

Hunt for Hurts

By A. H. MURPHY

First of two parts

Audrey's mouth works and she drools as she labors to speak. But her eyes are bright and intelligent and her choice of words, when you decipher them, is far above that of most 11-year-olds.

This child's speech is impaired, her vision imperfect and when she walks she hitches, shuffles and sways.

But she's bright. Her verbal IQ test places her in the top 20 per cent of her age group.

Salvageable

And, she's probably salvageable.

Audrey has a damaged brain and she, and others like her, are one reason for a University of Victoria clinic-laboratory which is asking questions and supplying some of its own answers in a research program almost unique in Canada.

There's nothing new about adult brain damage — two world wars saw to that. What is new is the long-neglected study of brain damage in children.

Several Kinds

There is no simple explanation of the work being done on the Landsdowne campus, but Dr. William H. Gaddes, head of the university's department of psychology, who is in charge of the research, makes a gallant effort to put it into lay terms.

Children suffering from several kinds of brain damage, congenital or not, are put through a series of expertly designed psychological tests aimed at locating the injury tive, irritable, aggressive and hard to manage.

And yet this child may be, and in many cases is, brighter than those around him. His problem may be one of channelling or providing him with sufficient stimulus rather than one of insufficient perception.

Four Groups

Dr. Gaddes and his assistants, working on too small a budget and in inadequate quarters, deal with four groups of children, a normal control group, mental retardates, the known brain damage group and the minimal borderline group.

The minimal borderline group, suffering from what the neurologists call "organic brain syndrome" is composed of children who can't spell, can't read, but can run and jump. Frequently they have some suggestion on the electroencephalograph but nothing too conclusive and (hopeful) sign have temper outbursts from time to time.

Often Enough

Members of three of the four groups dealt with in the neuropsychology laboratory at Landsdowne have some brain malfunction.

It is the laboratory's task to find, by means of tests, where and how serious it is. Although the research program is not designed to supply corrective measures, the knowledge of where and how bad the damage is often enough, in itself, to suggest correction.

New neural pathways are indicated and ways seen to improve the child's communication with those around him.

For, after all, it is a matter of communication.

Gone for Good

Or damage can be caused by some condition which brings about a deficiency of blood in a portion of the brain.

Unlike nerve cells in other parts of the body, brain cells, when they die, are gone for good.

All of these injuries, and particularly the latter, says Dr. Gaddes, may result in a child with a behavior problem. He may be hypersensitive.

Haigh Says It's No 'Yard'

Harry Settles in Sidney

By JIM BRAHAM

Controversial junk dealer Harry Haigh has settled in Sidney and village is taking steps to see he does not set up a junkyard in its residential area.

Sidney council is setting the machinery in motion to tighten the zoning bylaw pertaining to junkyards.

Councillors also say they intend to increase the penalties for non-observance of this bylaw with a minimum fine of

Film Showing To Aid Blind

The premiere showing of the film The Smartest Boy in Town will take place at the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 1609 Blanshard Street, at 8:30 p.m. today. Proceeds will go to the institute.

$100 for the first offence and from $200 to $300 for repeated offences.

Mr. Haigh, central figure in a Victoria controversy after he turned the grounds of an 18-room Rockland Avenue mansion into a junkyard, has told his neighbors the Sidney home will not be used as a storage yard for junk.

To date he has numerous large blocks of wood stacked against a fence, five-gallon cans filled with an assortment of rusty nuts and bolts, small pieces of scrap-iron lined up neatly in his yard, and a couple of large tanks gracing the back doorstep.

An ambulance, still wearing the red crosses emblazoned on its sides, sits in his driveway, and is one of the vehicles he keeps for personal use.

"What else can he be going to do with this stuff?" asked his next door neighbor. "I don't mind him living there, it is just that I'd like him to keep the yard clean."

Harry Haigh's liking "to collect things" has brought him into many brushes with the law, and only last spring he was fined $500 for operating a junkyard without a licence.

He has been a controversial figure in this area for the past 12 years.

In 1956 he ran for mayor of Victoria during the civic elections and was given 750 votes, another time he ran as an aldermanic candidate and received 2,200 votes.

Daffodils 'Saved'

Cold Snap Boon To Flower Men

The cold weather may irk some people, but it is a real boon to blossom growers, say federal department of agriculture horticulturists.

Jack Crossley, horticulturist in charge of ornamentals at the department's Saanichton experimental farm, said the cold snap has retarded the growth of daffodils.

The daffodils are grown for shipment to outside points for the Easter season.

LITTLE DAMAGE

This year, the unseasonal warmth accelerated growth and growers feared they might have to pick the blossoms too soon, then put them in cold storage.

Mr. Crossley said there has been "no particular damage" to blossoms and budding flowers.

Cane fruits and strawberries on southern Vancouver Island suffered little or no damage, said Alan Little, district horticulturist for the B.C. department of agriculture.

"There may be traces of damage here and there, but it's negligible," he said. "On the mainland the damage is heavy."

Weather forecaster William Mackie said Wednesday that the cold air will last for the next few days at least.

Temperatures during the day will range about 45 degrees and will drop to between 25 and 32 degrees at night.

Winds will be from the north-east at 15 miles an hour.

Saanich Wants Sole Control

City Parks 'Wasted'

Saanich should take over and maintain two parks now run under joint control with Victoria, according to Saanich Coun. Ed Lum.

"We are not getting our money's worth," said Coun. Lum. "Saanich could do a better job on its own."

The parks he was concerned about are Mount Douglas Park in Saanich and city park on West Gorge Road, on the Saanich side of the Gorge.

The parks are both administered by the Victoria-Saanich Beaches and Parks committee, COMMITTEE AGREED.

Saanich parks and recreation committee Wednesday agreed with Coun. Lum's suggestion that council should approach Victoria to obtain control over Mount Douglas Park.

A recommendation by Coun. Lum that the municipality attempt to gain a long-term lease on the Gorge Park will be taken to Saanich council for discussion.

ISSUE TORSED AROUND

"Year after year the Gorge development issue is tossed around," said Coun. Lum.

"Victoria aldermen say something should be done about it, but they refuse to spend any money."

He pointed out the Victoria-Saanich beaches and parks committee has budgeted only $350 for the Gorge park this year.

He said the land is in danger of being sold by the city.

Saanich parks superintendent

A. E. Richman said "the park is already subdivided by the city and ready to sell."

He said if Saanich leased the land, it could be made into a permanent green belt and recreation area.

"There would be an awful howl from the public if Victoria ever sold the land," said Coun. Lum.

Coun. Doug Crosby said Victoria will not allow the area to be dedicated as a park, because of its use in obtaining borrowing powers.

"It is time to sit down and get some action," said Coun. Lum.

SAME AS MT. TOLMIE

He suggested Gorge park, which lies on West Gorge Road between Tillicum and Millgrove, could be developed by Saanich in the same way as Mt. Tolmie Park, "at a very reasonable cost."

Coun. Harold Todd suggested council try to obtain a 10-year lease for $1.

"It's time Mount Douglas park was turned over to Saanich," Coun. Lum commented.

Bank Folk Give Blood

The two-day Red Cross blood-donor clinic got off to a fast start Wednesday when 96 employees of local banks crowded into Red Cross House on Fort Street to give blood.

In all, 271 pints were donated on the first day of the clinic, which goes on all day today.

Minstrels Popular

The Minstrel Show at McPherson Playhouse is sold right out for Friday and Saturday night performances.

Officials of the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League said Wednesday there are still tickets available at the Playhouse box office for tonight's performance.

Three-Fifths Not Enough

More Spending Needed

Saanich does not spend enough on parks and maintenance of recreation areas, according to parks superintendent A. E. Richman.

"Our capital budget is too low year after year," Mr. Richman told the parks committee Wednesday.

He said the amount suggested for parks this year is only three-fifths what it should be.

The provisional budget allocated $30,000 for parks work in 1965. "We should have $50,000," Mr. Richman said.

Also at the meeting:

● Coun. Edward Lum said he is against development of small lot-jobs. "They cost far too much for their size," he said, "but it looks like we're stuck with them."

● Mr. Richman said he is discussing with utility companies the possibility of the municipality clearing tree limbs near utility lines.

● The committee expressed disappointment in a plan for a proposed shelter at Cadboro-Gyro park, submitted by Gyro club, and will ask for another drawing.

● An offer from the junior branch, Victoria Natural History Society to lay out a nature trail in Logan Park was received with favorable comment from the committee.

Veteran Newsman Heads University Fund Publicity

A veteran Victoria reporter and radio personality Monte Roberts has been appointed publicity director of the Tri-universities Capital Fund campaign.

The appointment was announced by W. H. Armstrong, general campaign chairman of the Vancouver Island division. Mr. Roberts will be responsible for information on the universities fund drive on Vancouver Island.

NOT LUXURY

"University education is not a luxury," Mr. Roberts said. "If a person wants to earn more than a bacon-and-beans salary, he can't get by without it."

Mr. Roberts explained he

was taking the job because he believed in higher education.

"I'm of a generation which can get by without a college education," he said, "and I believe my son is of the last generation which can do so."

WIDE EXPERIENCE

Born in Victoria, Mr. Roberts has worked for the Vancouver Province, the Winnipeg Tribune and the Victoria Times.

He has also worked for Cockfield Brown and P. H. Hayhurst advertising agencies, and with a local radio station.

Mr. Roberts will confer with the Vancouver publicity committee Friday in an effort to set up co-ordination between the Island and Mainland campaigns.

School, Homes Wrecked

Snowstorms, Tornadoes Cripple Cities in U.S.

CHICAGO (UPI) — Storms belted the American south with tornadoes and lashed the middle west with crippling, near-blizzard snows Wednesday. A tornado ripped a four-city metropolitan area in northwest Alabama, injuring at least 22 people and destroying more than 40 homes. Another twister lifted the roof off an elementary school in Lawrenceburg, Tenn., but 700 children escaped injury.

The storms blocked midwestern highways with mountainous drifts and built up rush-hour traffic jams at Chicago and Milwaukee.

SCHOOLS CLOSE

Hundreds of schools closed in Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois. The University of Wisconsin campuses at Milwaukee and Madison suspended classes. Major car plants shut down at Milwaukee and Janesville, Wis. Nearly a foot of snow hit southern and central Minnesota. Twisters cut swaths of destruction through Alabama. One tornado struck Tusculum, Ala., then knifed into the communities of Sheffield and Muscle Shoals. In addition to at least 40 homes destroyed, dozens of other homes and buildings were damaged.

FIRES STARTED

The twister knocked out power in Tusculum, Sheffield, Muscle Shoals and Florence, Ala. The Sheffield hospital was put on emergency power to keep its operating room going. The high winds triggered at least three fires. Power lines dangled dangerously in the streets.

FARMS DAMAGED

A weather observer reported a small tornado damaged farmsteads, trees and lines near Lebanon, Tenn. High winds unroofed a house, overturned several trucks and damaged the Effingham County fairgrounds at Altamont, Ill. High winds collapsed the structural steel framework of a new Roman Catholic church under construction in Milwaukee.

Space Tower Planned For August's PNE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Capt. H. J. C. Terry, president of the Pacific National Exhibition, announced plans Wednesday for the erection of a 330-foot passenger-carrying "space tower" on the PNE grounds here.

He said he hoped construction of this new European-designed tower would begin soon so it could be completed in time for the Aug. 31 opening of this year's PNE.

Only expense to the PNE would be the cost of a ticket taker, with the PNE receiving a percentage of the gross revenue, said Capt. Terry.

'To Tell or Not'

Windfall President Tells of Dilemma

TIMMONS, Ont. (CP) — George MacMillan told the Windfall royal commission Wednesday he probably "would have been shot" had he told shareholders there was no ore in the first 570 feet of the Windfall drill core and then discovered values in the same hole at deeper levels.

He said "there has been some discussion as to why I did not assay the crucial area from 416 to 570 feet. This has caused me some troubles also. I felt at that time that I was not through the area where there was mineralization. I don't think any man alive could say I would not run into commercial ore as I drilled."

CRUCIAL CORE
"Had I assayed that crucial core and told the public I had no commercial values, and then drilled further and found ore, as I had a 50-50 chance of doing — the roof would have fallen in. It would have been said that I knew all along there was ore. I probably would have been shot. In that dilemma I, and I alone, decided to finish the hole and have it assayed."

Mr. MacMillan, 65-year-old president of Windfall Oils and Mines Limited and his wife, Viola, both testified before the commission Wednesday. Mrs. MacMillan spent only 10 minutes testifying before the adjournment.

Huge Red Fleet Seen Off Alaska

KETCHIKAN, Alaska (AP) — A fleet of 90 Russian vessels was fishing Wednesday in southeastern Alaska waters, 140 miles west of here, said Capt. Henry Clay Keene, commander of the Ketchikan Coast Guard base.

Keene said he flew over the area Tuesday and saw three or four factory ships, a tanker and dozens of trawlers.

The 327-foot Coast Guard Cutter Taney followed the fleet for a time and is still in the vicinity, said Mr. Keene.

Most Russian fishing operations in Alaska waters in recent years have been in the Bering Sea, along the Aleutian Islands or in the Gulf of Alaska, well to the north and west of here.

Paved Way for Red Regime

Gold to Nationalist China 'Deliberately Delayed'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The controversial Harry Dexter White case emerged from the shadows of history again Wednesday with the publication of two thick volumes of documents about Chinese-American financial relations during the Second World War.

The Senate internal security subcommittee published the volumes — extracts from the papers of the late Henry Morgenthau Jr., who was treasury secretary at the time.

Subcommittee chairman James O. Eastland (D-Miss.) said the papers proved that "foot-dragging" in disbursing U.S. funds to Nationalist China "was to a great degree responsible for the financial debacle which paved the way for Communist conquest."

Eastland said the excerpts proved "the deep involvement in the Chinese negotiations" of White, then a top treasury official. White was later charged by the FBI and others with having been a spy for Russia.

Prof. Anthony Kubek of the University of Dallas, who made the selection of papers for publication from the Morgenthau files, said in a foreword that White deliberately attempted to wreck Nationalist China's monetary system.

GOLD WAS DELAYED

Probably the most controversial single item covered in the papers concerns $200,000,000 in gold earmarked for China out of a $500,000,000 credit authorized by Congress in 1942.

Kubek said that "In the Chinese gold episode... there is no single act of White's for which an innocent explanation could not have been offered. But taken together, his acts are clearly an attempt to wreck the Chinese money."

Morgenthau delayed shipping the gold, except for small quantities, until 1945 on the advice of White and other treasury officials.

Canadian-Built Device Probes Atmosphere

TORONTO (CP) — A high altitude research rocket carrying a nose-cone assembled by University of Toronto scientists was successfully launched Wednesday at Fort Churchill, Man.

The Black Brant II carried a 150-pound nose-cone, said Professor Gordon Patterson.

"Preliminary analysis of data received indicates that the highly complex apparatus performed perfectly," he said.

Professor Patterson is head of the Institute for Aerospace Studies at the University of Toronto.

The information from the nose-cone will be used in the designing of space craft for re-entry into the earth's atmosphere. Data was collected on pressure, density, wind, and temperatures from altitudes ranging from 90 to 150 miles.

A four-man team from the Institute was in Fort Churchill, 610 miles north of Winnipeg, to observe the launching.

Birling on Display

Tokyo Trade Fair Will See Spinning Wickheims

By BOB PETHICK

Sooke's Wickheim Brothers, who have run hundreds of miles in international birling championships without travelling very far, will head for Tokyo in April to show the Japanese their particular brand of talent.

The occasion will be the International Trades Fair, April 16 to May 6, where the boys will perform in a most elaborate setting.

A 50-by-35-foot pond in the centre of the Canadian Pavilion will be the scene of the run-fast stop-quick sport and spectators are bound to do a little gasping when the brothers go into their act.

On display will be all the skill and endurance that has kept the brothers in the world championship of birlers since 1955, when Ardiel Wickheim first cracked the American hold on the title at Washburn, Wis.

The birlers will be sponsored by the Federal Department of trades and commerce.

A spokesman for the department said there are plans to hold contests between some Japanese log rollers and the flying Wickheims.

So when the brothers buckle on their special $40 custom made boots and leap onto the 13-foot logs used for birling the audience will undoubtedly see a few dunkings.

Jobless Figures Take Unusual Dip

OTTAWA (CP)—Unemployment took an unusual dip between January and February, dropping to 398,000 from 408,000.

A joint report issued Wednesday by the bureau of statistics and the labor department said unemployment at mid-February represented 5.8 per cent of the labor force, compared with seven per cent a year earlier.

Adjusted for seasonal variations, the February jobless rate was four per cent. This rate was 4.3 per cent in January and four in December.

Employment was 223,000 higher than in February of 1964 and unemployment down 68,000. Non-farm employment rose by 285,000 but was partly offset by a drop of 62,000 in farm employment.

Ontario had the lowest unemployment rate with 3.7 per cent, down from 3.9 per cent in January and 4.7 per cent in February of last year.

British Columbia's rate was 5.8, down from 6.3 in January and 7.6 in February, 1964.

Masons Angry with BBC TV Gave Away Secrets

LONDON (UPI)—British Freemasons reacted angrily Wednesday to a television program which claimed to expose some of the organization's secrets.

The program, "Free Masonry: The Open Secret," was broadcast Tuesday night by the BBC. The 45-minute program showed an initiation ceremony, a candidate's entry into the various degrees of the order, and a secret handshake. It disclosed several passwords.

"It was an intrusion into our legitimate affairs," said the Earl of Scarborough. He is grand master of the United Grand Lodge of Ancient Free and Accepted Masons of England.

Negro Held in Subway Slaying

'Lot of Hate in Him'

NEW YORK (UPI)—A towering Negro taught to hate whites by Black Nationalist fanatics surrendered Wednesday to face murder charges in the subway slaying of a white youth who tried to protect three Negro girls from being molested.

Christopher "Butch" Lynch, 17, with no place left to hide, gave himself up at a Harlem police station just a few hours before funeral services for Andrew Mornile, 17, the boy he is accused of killing.

Lynch was accompanied to the police station by his brother, Roger, 28, described as a "bad influence" by their mother, Mrs. Irene Lynch, a nurse, who arrived at the precinct house a short time later. March 25 was set for a hearing.

Mrs. Patricia Harris, his

sister, said she was "not surprised" at his arrest. "He followed some Negro nationalist organization that taught him to hate the white man," she said. "He had a lot of hatred in him."

Lynch's other sister, Irene, 19, said she saw her brother about three hours before the slaying and "he was good and high" apparently on wine.

Mornile was returning home from Brooklyn last Friday night from a date with his girl friend. He boarded the subway and sat in the front car.

PULLED KNIFE

According to police, Lynch and a companion, Terry Toomer, now held as a material witness, followed three Negro girls onto the train and began molesting them.

When Mornile tried to protect the girls, Lynch allegedly became enraged, pulled out a hunting knife with a six-inch blade and stabbed Mornile in the head and neck.

Cyprus Assurances Sought by Canada

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has sought assurances from Greece and Turkey that there will be no military intervention in Cyprus if the United Nations peace-keeping force is to continue there, External Affairs Minister Martin told the Commons Wednesday.

UN Secretary-General U Thant has sought the same assurances from the two countries, Mr. Martin said in reply to New Democrat Leader Douglas. The assurances were being asked for again Wednesday at a UN Security Council meeting concerning the troubled island.

The minister said the Security Council meeting was being held against a background of events that were causing considerable concern. Reported movements of both Turkish and Greek troops "may not be unrelated to the UN session."

Mr. Douglas also asked whether Canada is asking for any revisions in its agreement to post troops with the peace-keeping force before it would agree to continue supplying men to Cyprus.

Mr. Martin said he wasn't prepared to make any statement on this matter while the council session was on.

Take your choice of individually adjustable bucket seats or broad roomy bench seats. Both are deep foam-padded and beautifully upholstered for wonderfully relaxed driving... however far you travel!

Comet's styling is outstanding... beginning with the smart vertical headlight arrangement to the fresh clean sweep of the lines to the rear deck.

Comet's dashboard is just one example of the extra luxury touches you enjoy. In the Caliente walnut-toned insets on the dash and walnut-toned steering wheel give you that "fun with a touch of luxury" feeling.

For outstanding styling, gracious comfort, and sparkling performance in a beautiful car Models illustrated: Comet Caliente Convertible and two-door hardtop, two of the Ford Family of Fine Products, built in Canada.

it's Comet! Best compact on the road today.

Comet's best on the road—in every way. Its styling is beautiful... from the smart vertical headlight arrangement... to the clean crisp lines of its rear deck. Comet's youthful styling says "fun with a touch of luxury".

Comet's unbeatable in comfort and luxury touches, too! The interior is beautiful... and beautifully relaxing. You can choose from individually adjustable bucket seats, or broad roomy bench seats. Both are deep foam-padded for the most comfortable driving. The upholstery is beautiful—vinyls, fabrics, plaids and stripes in high-fashion colours, textures, and patterns. And on the floor: soft, colour-keyed, loop-yarn nylon and rayon carpeting. Comet's luxury is obvious and in the Caliente there are beautiful touches such as vinyl and foam-padded door panels, distinctive walnut-toned insets in the instrument panel and doors and, of course, door-mounted courtesy lights.

You'll suddenly know what performance is when you drive Comet. It sparkles! You choose either of two spirited sixes, the zesty 289 V-8, or the fiery Cyclone V-8 that delivers a powerhouse, 4-barrel, 225 horsepower.

For the smoothest ride on the road today, Comet offers you this choice of transmissions: a silky, 3-speed dual range automatic, a 3-speed manual (fully-synchronized with V-8's), and a snappy "4-on-the-floor". Add Comet's new improved suspension and you have the ultimate in compact car performance.

You'll love Comet's size. You can stretch your legs comfortably because Comet's longer. And it's wide enough to seat six of you easily. Plenty of trunk space for your grocery parcels or your vacation luggage.

Comet's model selection is terrific. There's a wide range—all appealing. 2 and 4-door sedans, hardtops, wagons, and a startlingly beautiful convertible; 11 handsome models in all—in 4 great series: the value-packed 202, the 404, the glamorous Caliente and the amazing Comet Cyclone.

Comet's waiting for you now at your Mercury dealer's. Take a test-drive. Take it soon and prove to yourself that Comet is the best compact on the road today.

Rivard Escape

Guard Denies Giving Order

MONTREAL (CP)—A guard Andre Durocher on the "rink-watering" expedition that set off their March 2 escape, Mr. Wagner said guard Bonneville had been ordered by Beaupre to find Rivard and have him lend a hand with the hoses.

SUBDUED GUARDS
Once united in this assignment, Rivard and Durocher moved quickly to subdue several guards and prison employees and escape from the jail. They have not been seen by authorities since.

Sergeant Roger Beaupre is quoted in an interview with La Presse that "at no time did I tell (fellow guard Noel) Bonneville to go and find Rivard to help Durocher water the rink."

APPARENT CONFLICT

Beaupre's statement appeared to conflict with one made in the provincial legislature last week by Quebec Attorney-General Claude Wagner. Questioned by an opposition member on how Rivard came to accompany fellow prisoner

Asked why either Durocher or Rivard was permitted to water the rink in 40-degree temperatures, Beaupre said he did not know that night how warm it was outside. He had not been outside since he reported for work at 4 p.m., some two hours before the escape.

No Seepage in Solitary

VANCOUVER (CP) — Oakalla Prison's solitary-confinement wing is under the cattle shed, but nothing seeps through, an official said Tuesday night.

CAMERA QUEEN

Carleen Anderson spends her working life in front of TV cameras but is never seen on the screen. Technicians focus on her complexion to adjust their color cameras.

Salwyn Rocksborough-Smith, director of corrections, was commenting on charges of "torture" chamber conditions made in police court Tuesday morning by two men charged with narcotics offences.

Mr. Rocksborough-Smith said one of the men — Donald Thompson, 22 — was placed in solitary confinement for violating prison rules.

He said the solitary confinement wing is "not ideal," but compared it with an air raid shelter. He said it is well-heated, and food is served prisoners according to defined regulations subject to constant checks.

Thompson and co-defendant Bruce Hawkins, 25, said in court cattle urine seeps through the cowshed floor into the solitary cells, and the whole wing has a damp, unhealthy climate. Mr. Rocksborough-Smith said there is no seepage into the solitary wing from any of the prison's farm buildings.

Pay Award

VANCOUVER (CP) — An arbitration award Tuesday granted a 4½ per cent pay increase to the 700 members of the Vancouver City Police force. The increase is retroactive to March 1.

Pope Rebukes Critics

No Dozing—Listen and Pray

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Pope Paul said Wednesday critics of the reforms in Roman Catholic liturgy worship show a "certain spiritual laziness" and lack understanding of the religious implications of the revisions.

Before, it was enough to attend (a service), the Roman Catholic pontiff said. "Now it is necessary to participate. Before, one could doze, and perhaps chat. He can no longer do this. Now he must listen and pray."

Pope Paul's remarks, at his regular weekly public audience in St. Peter's Basilica, constitute his strongest rebuke to critics of the liturgical reform effected by the Vatican ecumenical council.

The reform allows the use of modern languages in place of Latin and requires worshippers to take a greater part in the service through spoken responses to some prayers by the priest.

Trio Out—Minus Chutes

SYDNEY (UPI) — The Sydney Mirror quoted a South Vietnamese official Wednesday as saying three Vietnamese intellectuals were pushed out of a plane without parachutes over North Viet Nam last Monday for backing a peace movement.

The newspaper quoted Nguyen Xuan Oanh, who served as South Viet Nam's acting premier on two occasions last year. Oanh said the plane took off from the American air base at Da Nang after a "farewell ceremony" attended by three government ministers.

"They were thrown out of the plane all right, but they didn't have parachutes," Oanh was quoted. "These things happen in wartime."

Oanh's report conflicted with dispatches from Da Nang which said the three men were scheduled to be deported to the Communist north on Friday.

Zealand to attend a meeting of Asian economists. He is governor of the National Bank of South Viet Nam.

He identified the three deportees as Ton Thai Duong, a university professor; Cao Minh Chiem, a newspaper man, and Pham Van Huyen, a physician.

The three were accused of leading a Communist-backed movement for a cease-fire and obtaining 358 signatures on a "peace petition."

Da Nang dispatches said Vietnamese army officers hoped to parachute the middle-aged men into North Viet Nam on Friday but that the government in Saigon was pressing for something less dramatic.

While the question is being threshed out the military command in Da Nang assigned a veteran paratrooper to the local military prison with instructions to teach the fundamentals of parachuting to the three men.

U.S. Group Welcomed

At the recent general meeting of the Victoria Jayceeettes, president Mrs. R. Owens introduced head table guests, and Mrs. D. Mathison, membership director, introduced new member Mrs. V. Tubman, and welcomed Mrs. P. Erickson, Mrs. R. Phillips, Mrs. M. Phillips, Mrs. R. Ackenhansen, Mrs. D. Knotek, Mrs. B. Westmoreland, Mrs. R. Schmitt and Mrs. G. Johnson of the Port Angeles Jayceeettes.

Secretary, Mrs. W. Gaudin, read the minutes of the previous meeting, and treasurer Mrs. B. Belfie reported a balance of $270.68. Standing committee reports were received from Mrs. G. Allen, Mrs. D. Webb, Mrs. B. Small, Mrs. B. Brinkworth, Mrs. H. Taylor, and Mrs. D. Paulin.

Plans were formulated to provide Easter baskets for the primary children and gifts for the adults at Elford Centre for the Retarded. The Jaycees requested assistance with their Easter visitations to children's wards of local hospitals, and this was approved unanimously.

Mrs. Gerald Johnson, Washington State director, addressed the group, as did the president of the Nanaimo unit, Mrs. Grant Johnston.

Old Hair Styles Come Back

The French Association of Men's Hairdressers held a show at the Hotel Napoleon to introduce their "dandy" line of hairdressing for males. The characteristics of the "dandy line" are the hair dressed across the forehead and around the ears. The forgotten modes of yesteryear are now in vogue. Gentleman in centre sports the 1935 version of the dandy style while on his left is 1805 fashion and right is the 1830 style.—(Fednews photo)

Clothes for India

OAKVILLE, Ont. (CP)—Judy Pullen, an Oakville girl now teaching near the Indian border for the Canadian University Services Overseas, has been sent 18 ton-chests full of clothes. The clothes were collected by the Oakville branch of the Canadian Save the Children Fund for refugee children who have lost their parents.

Women Better Drivers

MOSCOW (UPI)—A Soviet newspaper said today women make better taxi drivers than men and charged that "roughnecks" and "greedy drivers" are giving Moscow cabbies a bad name.

Many cabbies take fares far out of the way to run up the meter, said the newspaper "Moskovsky Komsomolets," organ of the Moscow young Communist League organization.

Often, they charge three persons for the same fare on the meter and pocket extra rubles. They also take on fares without starting the meter.

"The roughnecks and the greedy not only spoil a customer's mood but give a bad impression of Moscow," the newspaper said.

Referring to the sprinkling of women cab drivers in Moscow, the newspaper said:

"The service of women in taxis is no worse than that of men. It is even better."

Toastmistresses

'Don't Sneer at Nonsense' Gentlemen's Night Theme

Victoria Toastmistress Club No. 90 entertained at a dessert party Tuesday evening in Mayfair Lanes dining room on the occasion of its annual Gentlemen's Night.

Arrangements of white carnations and greenery, highlighted with shamrocks, centred the guest tables.

Members' husbands, some of whom are members of the Toastmasters Clubs of Victoria, were among those present. A number of guests participated in the evening's fun when topic mistress, Mrs. C. C. Warren, called on them for contributions during the table topic discussions. Miss Donelda Lenz introduced the topic mistress.

Table topic for the evening was Speaking Positively. Mrs. Warren explained why the "won'ts" and "don'ts" used in speaking often adversely color the opinions of listeners. She stressed the need to "think positively" and urged the speakers to use such words as "can, will and shall" for a sincere note.

Taking part in the program were Mrs. B. H. Proff, Mr. C. W. Conrad, Mrs. J. R. Pipes, Alderman Robert Baird, Mrs. D. L. Brown, and Mr. Douglas Grant.

HAPPY RETURNS

When her husband John Farrow died, Maureen O'Sullivan ended 12 years of retirement from the screen to start a TV career.

Mrs. T. Conrad, introduced toastmistress Mrs. J. J. Warr, who gave the theme of the evening, 'Don't Sneer at Nonsense'.

Speakers for the evening were Mrs. E. J. Brady who spoke on The Lady Pirate; Mrs. D. L. Brown, Wedlock; Mrs. Frank C. Hong, From the Mouth of Babes; Mrs. K. S. Baines, Marital Bliss, and Mrs. P. A. Peterson, Did You Ever Think of That.

Mrs. Pipes gave an impromptu speech entitled, Boldness.

The Oscar was awarded to Mrs. Hong and the spur to Mrs. Pipes. Alderman Baird made the presentation.

Mrs. H. E. Rasmussen thanked the speakers and also gave the closing thought. Mrs. C. W. Conrad, president, gave the inspiration.

Critics were Mr. Conrad and Mrs. Proff; timer, Mrs. J. M. Speers; lexicologist, Miss Gail Hitchens. Mr. Baird gave the general evaluation.

Woman Is Queen

NEW YORK (UPI)—"The French woman is perfect with men—and perfectly beastly with other women."

Thus does Olivia de Havilland, wife of a Frenchman, describe the basic character as she reads it of the women of her adopted country and why les femmes have a reputation for charming the opposite sex.

Said Miss de Havilland, "The Frenchman's family life and home are the most important part of his life."

"The French woman is queen because she runs a kingdom for the king—her husband." The actress, wife of Pierre Galante, an executive editor of Paris Match, cited the differing approaches of the American woman and her French counterpart by saying:

Toastmistresses

'Don't Sneer at Nonsense' Gentlemen's Night Theme

Victoria Toastmistress Club No. 90 entertained at a dessert party Tuesday evening in Magfair Lanes dining room on the occasion of its annual Gentlemen's Night.

Arrangements of white carnations and greenery, highlighted with shamrocks, centred the guest tables.

Members' husbands, some of whom are members of the Toastmasters Clubs of Victoria, were among those present. A number of guests participated in the evening's fun when topic mistress, Mrs. C. C. Warren, called on them for contributions during the table topic discussions. Miss Donelda Lenz introduced the topic mistress.

Table topic for the evening was Speaking Positively. Mrs. Warren explained why the "won'ts" and "don'ts" used in speaking often adversely color the opinions of listeners. She stressed the need to "think positively" and urged the speakers to use such words as "can, will and shall" for a sincere note.

Taking part in the program were Mrs. B. H. Proft, Mr. C. W. Conrad, Mrs. J. R. Pipes, Alderman Robert Baird, Mrs. D. L. Brown, and Mr. Douglas Grant.

HAPPY RETURNS

When her husband John Farrow died, Maureen O'Sullivan ended 12 years of retirement from the screen to start a TV career.

Mrs. T. Conrad introduced toastmistress Mrs. J. J. Warr, who gave the theme of the evening, 'Don't Sneer at Nonsense'.

Speakers for the evening were Mrs. K. J. Brady who spoke on The Lady Pirate; Mrs. D. L. Brown, Wedlock; Mrs. Frank Hong, From the Mouth of Babes; Mrs. K. S. Baines, Marital Bliss, and Mrs. P. A. Petersen, Did You Ever Think of That.

Mrs. Pipes gave an impromptu speech entitled, Boldness.

The Oscar was awarded to Mrs. Hong and the spur to Mrs. Pipes. Alderman Baird made the presentation.

Mrs. H. E. Rasmussen thanked the speakers and also gave the closing thought. Mrs. C. W. Conrad, president, gave the inspiration.

Critics were Mr. Conrad and Mrs. Proft; timer, Mrs. J. M. Speers; lexicologist, Miss Gail Hitchens. Mr. Baird gave the general evaluation.

Donates to Welfare

The sum of $1,024.57 was given to welfare during 1964 by Victoria Ex-Service Women, Pacific Command No. 182, Royal Canadian Legion.

An additional sum of $928.90 was given in various other donations during the past year it was learned at the recent meeting.

Arrangements were made for the forthcoming annual reunion to be held in Victoria April 3. The branch will sponsor the DVA Hospital bingo in May.

Woman Is Queen

NEW YORK (UPI)—"The French woman is perfect with men—and perfectly beastly with other women."

Thus does Olivia de Havilland, wife of a Frenchman, describe the basic character as she reads it of the women of her adopted country and why les femmes have a reputation for charming the opposite sex.

Said Miss de Havilland, "The Frenchman's family life and home are the most important part of his life."

"The French woman is queen because she runs a kingdom for the king—her husband." The actress, wife of Pierre Galante, an executive editor of Paris Match, cited the differing approaches of the American woman and her French counterpart by saying:

"If the American couple is dining out, the wife will say forthwith and specifically where they will go."

"The French woman will know definitely where she'd prefer to dine. But she suggests one restaurant she actually dislikes, and the husband will say no. Then she mentions another she doesn't like and again he will say no. Then she mentions a third, which she preferred in the first place, and by this time he is feeling so guilty he will acquiesce."

"The Frenchman was born protesting and dies protesting."

Miss de Havilland, of English heritage but reared in the United States, has lived in Paris since her marriage to Galante in 1955. Her book, "Every Frenchman Has One," recounts some of her experiences as an American wife in the French capital.

CAC Advises

Take Problem to Manager

OTTAWA (CP) — Manufacturers and retailers say one dissatisfied customer is more important to them than a general plea from a large organization, the Consumers' Association of Canada has told its members.

In the association's Ontario newsletter, the consumers are advised to make personal complaints to store managers or manufacturers if they are dissatisfied with food products or manufactured goods.

"Take your problem to the manager, buyer or person in charge. CAC enters the picture if you fail to get satisfaction from a personal campaign."

If a visit to the store manager or letter to the manufacturer fails to properly answer the complaint, the CAC says its local committee should be contacted.

Consumers lodging a complaint are told they should collect the following information:

1. The complete name of the product, manufacture and address;
2. Size, price, quality or grade;
3. Store where purchased, address and date;
4. If canned or packaged, the code number on lid or wrap;
5. The complaint and how it was handled.

In Ontario, a Provincial Consumer Problems Committee, under the direction of Mrs. J. R. A. Turner of Don Mills, has set up a central file system to collect the complaints made to local branches.

But consumers are reminded that they should not neglect to let manufacturers for products and services which have been satisfactory.

The sum of $208 was raised at the tea held on Saturday at the Salvation Army Matson Lodge.

The affair was opened by Mrs. J. A. Roberts, wife of the Rev. J. A. Roberts, rector of St. Paul's Church, Esquimalt, and was sponsored by the Women's Auxiliary to the Lodge.

Many interested visitors made a tour of the Lodge and grounds during the afternoon.

Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: Eighteen months ago I became engaged to Rex. We were both 21 and had gone together two years. Ten days after my parents announced our engagement at a lovely party, Rex told me the horrible news.

He had gotten an 18-year-old girl in trouble and would have to marry her. I never heard the girl's name before that night and here he had been seeing her on the sneak for over a year.

I was a college junior and had to drop out for the remainder of the semester because I was too ill to get out of bed. It took months of therapy before I was able to leave the house and face my friends. I'm proud to say I made a good adjustment and am now dating and having a good time.

Last night Rex called me and begged me to meet him at a cafe. He sounded very upset so I agreed. He tells me he hates his wife and he's not sure the baby is his. He wants to get a divorce and marry me. He says life isn't worth living and he'll commit suicide if I don't take him back.

I loved him once but now I'm confused and afraid to become involved. Please help me. — ANNAMARIE.

Dear A: This character is poison. He is also married and a father. Tell him to stay away from you and to work out his problems as best he can. You owe him nothing.

Dear Ann Landers: I am 14 years old (a boy) with a problem that none of my friends seem to have.

My Dad is always asking me to call up certain business people on the telephone. I'm supposed to look up the number, get the party on the line, then call him. Sometimes I feel like a jerk because I can't think of anything to say.

Last night I told my Dad I didn't want to make the calls any more and he said, "I don't care whether you want to or not. I do plenty of things I don't want to do. This won't kill you."

How about it? Is my father fair? — RATTLED ROBERT.

Dear Rattled: Yes, he's fair. It's a joy (and sometimes a shock) to encounter a teenager who can speak courteously and intelligently to an adult he knows, much less a stranger. Don't fight it. It's good training.

Steer Or Push?

HOLLYWOOD (CP)—Though many people wonder why Della Street, Perry Mason's secretary on TV, has never married, in real life Barbara Hale is very happily Mrs. Bill Williams. She says when she first met her husband she tried for two years to get him to ask her out. "When he finally did, he called for me and said, 'Would you rather sit at the wheel or push?' His car had broken down. I pushed."

Garden Notes

Damping-Off Disease

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

"Dear Mr. Chesnut: I wonder if you can tell me what could have happened to my snapdragon plants. I sent away for the best seeds I could get—very expensive—and planted them in real good garden soil. The pots were kept on my sunny kitchen windowsill and given lots of water. The plants came up within a week, but before they were more than an inch tall, every baby plant toppled over and died. What did I do wrong?"

I can usually count on receiving several dozen letters along this line every spring, for this trouble is very common indeed. It is the dread "damping-off" disease, a soil-borne infection that attacks and rots the stems of small plants at soil level, and probably the most common cause of death among seedlings.

The source of the trouble is a fungus organism in the soil, and when I say "fungus" I don't mean anything that looks like a toadstool or those shelf-like growths found on tree stumps, but invisible spores more like those that cause damp clothes to mildew, wood timbers to rot, and spread athlete's foot in humans.

The damping-off organisms are very common, and it is almost impossible to find a sample of garden soil completely free from these infectious spores. Strangely enough, damping-off doesn't seem to attack plants grown from an outdoor sowing to anything like the same extent that indoor seedlings suffer, probably because seeds are sown more thinly outdoors and are not so likely to be over-watered. Fresh air and plenty of air movement probably helps too, for all fungus infections seem to thrive in stagnant, stale air.

The damping-off organisms can thrive and spread only on the surface of cold, wet soil, so our first line of defence is to sow our seeds in a rather porous soil, of such a texture that water passes freely through it. This is why we add coarse sand to our seed-sowing soil mixtures—so the surface will dry off quickly, before the infection can attack the critical portion of the plant stems where they emerge from the soil.

Over-watering is the most common contributing factor in the loss of seedlings to damping-off disease. Novice gardeners seem to think that seedlings should be watered every hour on the hour, and it is difficult to convince them that even soil that appears to be almost bone dry may still contain enough moisture to sustain life in plants. With seedling plants especially, it is much safer to err on the side of dryness rather than to over-water.

Another factor in the control and prevention of damping-off disease is very thin sowing, for a crowded, congested stand of baby plants makes it an easy hop for the infection to spread from one plant to another, while the dense growth impedes air circulation between and among the little plants, creating the stagnant air and damp soil surface that favors the spread of the fungus.

In addition to taking these obvious precautions, old-time gardeners will often do all their seedling watering with a weak permanganate solution. Permanganate of potash, a mild disinfectant and fungicide, is available in bulk from most drug stores, and 25 cents worth is enough to keep you going for several years. Use just a few of the tiny brown crystals in the water—just enough to turn the water pink.

The one surefire way of beating the damping-off disease is to sow your seeds only in sterilized soil, in which the disease spores have been killed by heat or with chemicals, or in some sterile substitute for soil. This will be discussed in my next column.

...Of the People, by the...

Getting to vote in Bull Whip, Alabama, isn't as easy as one would think it would be. First, you have to sneak around a mounted sheriff's posse, then fight your way through a cloud of state police tear gas, and then you have to leap over a hundred cattle prods.

And finally, if you still want to vote in Bull Whip, you have to register, and the registration office in the courthouse is only open from 11:35 p.m. to midnight on every sixth Saturday of the month.

The problem is that, although the registration office is open, the courthouse is closed, and it's kind of hard to get into the building.

Even so, Mr. George Abernathy, a Negro, manages, much to the surprise of the registrar, to get in and asks to register to vote.

"Fine, George, fine. Ah'd be glad to register you as soon as you answer a few of these here questions," the registrar says. "Now, first off, what is your educational background?"

"I was a Rhodes scholar, I received a B.A. from Columbia, a Masters from Harvard, and a Ph.D. from M.I.T."

"That's just fine, George. Now let me ask you this. Can you read an' write?"

"I've written three books on cybernetics, Christian philosophy, and advanced political theory."

"Ah'd appreciate it if you didn't use such big words, George. If there's anything Ah hate it's an uppity voter."

Abernathy says, "I believe I have a right to register." here literacy test 'cause we can't have ignoramuses here literacy test 'cause we can't have ignoramuses voting for our great governor, George Wallace, if you know what Ah mean. Now, first off, would you please read something from this here newspaper?"

"It's in Chinese."

"That's right."

Abernathy reads three stories from the Chinese paper. The registrar is thrown but he doesn't want to show it.

"All right, now will you read the hieroglyphics off this here Rosetta Stone?" he says.

Mr. Abernathy reads the hieroglyphics and the registrar begins to get nervous.

"George, here is the constitution of Finland, in Finnish. Would you please interpret the first 14 articles for me?"

"What has got to do with voting in Alabama?"

"We got to keep out agitators and the like. Now, you going to take the test or not?"

Mr. Abernathy interprets the 14 articles and the registrar becomes truly frightened. He telephones the governor's office and reports what is happening. An aide comes back in a few minutes and says, "The governor says to give him part four of the test."

The registrar goes to his safe and takes out a clay jar. "George, there's only one more thing you're obligated to do for this here literacy test. Would you be so kind to read for me any two of these Dead Sea Scrolls?"

Mr. Abernathy reads the first one but stumbles on a word in the second one.

"Ah'm sorry, George. You've failed the literacy test, but you can come back next year and try again."

As Abernathy leaves the office, a white Alabamian comes in to register to vote.

The registrar says to him, "Would you please spell cat for me?"

The white voter says, "K-A-T."

"Try it again. You're getting warm."

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—Men Wanted: For Rita Hayworth, Ava Gardner, Lana Turner, Barbara Stanwyck. It's incredible that these attractive stars are minus a man in their lives. And have been for a long time. I guess this sort of thing could happen only in Hollywood where even a young beauty like Sue Lyons has been neglected by the males since her divorce from Hampton Fancher III. And I wonder what he is doing.

Young Jill Hayworth is doing fine, although her constant escort, TV producer Aaron Spelling, is no spring chicken. Aaron was recently divorced by Carolyn Jones . . . And in New York, Peggy Lee is seeing Doctor Victor Politano of Miami Beach. He flies in for weekends. Doctors make good husbands for stars. Amy Blyth is happy with her Doctor McNelly. And Irene Dunne has had her Doctor Griffin for 10 these many years. Doctors don't earn as much as their wives, but they are even more respected in their fields.

Olivia de Havilland and Bette Davis have drawn capacity crowds wherever they have travelled on behalf of their picture. Hush . . . Hush, Sweet Charlotte. The film is doing fine. But the girls will be glad when it is all over. Many tensions backstage. I hear. And what is this about Olivia and Pierre Galante, finally making the big decision? It certainly is obvious that Miss de Havilland is spending more and more time in this country, while Galante is in Paris.

I was called with the news that Elvis Presley's guiding light, Colonel Parker, was very ill. "It is serious," I was told when I called to check. "It's his back, a nerve pressing." "Painful" is a more accurate word, because the colonel is still functioning for Elvis at Metro, preparing his next, Harem Holiday.

Elizabeth Ashley is wearing a wedding band with diamonds. Don't ask me what it all means. Ask George Peppard.

Laurence Harvey is resting in Joan Cohn's house in Palm Springs . . . and Max Schell will be visiting the film festival in the Argentine in the very near future when he finishes Return From the Ashes in London. His Topkapi with Melina Mercouri and Peter Ustinov is one of the entries. It wouldn't surprise me if Princess Soraya takes a trip to South America at about the same time. She is already in this hemisphere . . . Samantha Egger and her actor groom, Tom Stern, will finally be getting their honeymoon, in the Bahamas.

Mary Tyler Moore, who plays Dick Van Dyke's wife in their successful television show, introduced me to her husband Grant Tinker, in charge of west coast TV programming for NBC. "Most people think I'm Mrs. Van Dyke in real life," said Mary. "She most definitely is not," said Mr. Tinker. Now in its fourth year "our show expires after the fifth."

Keep Up with the Times

Someone has aptly remarked that the radicalism of most people follows a course which resembles the outline below a newspaper photograph: it reads from "left to right."

In our more youthful days we are attracted by the latest possibilities of unknown moments. The future glitters; most problems, we believe, need only time and education for their solution.

But as we grow older, and fail to achieve some of our starry-eyed goals, we put down our telescopes, and stop searching the heavens for new discoveries. We no longer believe in "reaching for the moon."

We move "from left to right"; our spirit of progress wanes and we glory in the stability of "mature conservatism."

Somewhere along the line, however, we lose touch with the reality that growth is a law of nature. Instead of debunking novelty, cynically exclaiming that "there's nothing new under the sun," he had better recapture some of the hopefulness of our youth. If we do not—we're likely to find that we've run away from life, because we've refused to keep up with the times.

Almost 65 years ago, an editorial in a Boston newspaper took these special pains to comment on a new invention of Alexander Graham Bell:

"Joshua Copersmith, a man about 46 years of age, has been arrested in New York, for attempting to extort funds from innocent people by exhibiting a device which he says will convey the human voice over wires. Even if it were possible, the thing would be of no practical value!"

"Authorities who apprehended this criminal are to be congratulated. It may serve as an example to other conscienceless schemers who may hope to enrich themselves at the expense of their fellow creatures!"

Looking back we laugh—but, if we were to analyze our own thoughts regarding the possibilities inherent in the future, we might find that too often we describe potential personal progress in the same words: "Even if it were possible, it would be of no value."

We say this about—the possibility of controlling our anger, our deep desires to show those we love that we really care,—improving our attitudes toward those who are of different race or religion—our pious hopes that we might become better parents to our children, or better children to our parents.

In so many ways, as we grow older, we give up our hope of improving our lives. "It won't work; it can't be done," we mope; returning easily to "business as usual." Without realizing it, we succeed in debunking ourselves—and at great personal loss.

The times do change, but not for those who do not change with them. They stand still, plining over the "good old days," yet powerless to face this day. For this day, new ideas, new strength and new solutions are aborning.

And he who loses touch with the future possibilities emerging this very moment, has lost more than tomorrow; he has also lost today!

Irish Now Closer to Unity

DUBLIN (AP) — Ireland celebrated St. Patrick's Day today amid real hope that old enmities are dying and that national unity is coming closer.

At this traditional time of national stocktaking, the emphasis everywhere was on moves to end the cold war that has lasted for more than 40 years between the rival governments of the Roman Catholic south and Protestant Northern Ireland.

Sean Lemass, premier of the southern republic, set the keynote in his St. Patrick's Day message to Irishmen, at home and abroad.

Outstanding among developments of the last year, he said, were the talks which have opened between his government and that of the northern six counties, which still are part of the United Kingdom.

He added: "It is my hope that, pending the reintegration of the national territory, action taken following these discussions will nullify many of the material disadvantages of the partition of Ireland as well as helping to bring nearer the day of reunification."

"TAKE A HAND" Lemass appealed to Irishmen overseas to take a hand in the old country's development. He said Ireland's rate of growth now is among the highest in the world.

"You can all have a hand in building up Ireland," he said. "There is merchandise to buy. There are products in which you can invest. There is our country, which offers relaxation and contentment to the visitor and the tourist."

MONTREAL (CP) — The provincial fire commissioner's inquiry into the LaSalle apartment explosion has opened with testimony on the construction of the building shattered by the March 1 blast.

The inquiry is expected to run at least three weeks and hear scores of witnesses. The blast killed 27 persons.

'Better Than Killing'

American Birds Fed Birth Pills

AMHERST, Mass. (AP)—A research biologist at the University of Massachusetts has fed birth control pills to starlings.

Dr. David Weatherbee, describing the operation Tuesday, said he considered interfering with the birds' propagation is a more humane way of cutting down their numbers than killing them.

Starlings are considered a nuisance in the United States, where they have no natural enemies. They are not protected by Massachusetts state law.

CAUGHT IN BELFRY Dr. Weatherbee estimated a thousand birds were given the pills Monday night.

He said he and an assistant captured the starlings in the belfry of a church in Pelham.

Alberni Coach Likes His Club's Chances

By SOHAN RAM

PORT ALBERNI—After having their basketball fans wait for nearly a quarter of a century, Alberni Athletics are finally able to host a Canadian championship basketball tournament and tonight's night.

A double-knockout affair, the tournament continues through until Sunday or Monday, with Canada's four top teams, including the Athletics, competing.

SECOND TITLE
Athletics, winners of their ninth B.C. title in the 12 years that Elmer Speidel has been here, are looking for their second Dominion crown, winning their first Canadian title in 1955 when Speidel was playing-coach.

Alberni's chances of coming out on top in this one are "pretty good," according to Speidel, who feels that the A's will be the team to beat.

ALL THE WAY
"We started with little more than nothing at the beginning of the year and now we have come this far," he said. "We want to go all the way now."

"We should be the favored team, I would think. On our own home floor, in our home town and with these two tall guys helping out, we have a strong starting line."

"These two tall guys" are 6'5" Dave Way of New Westminster Bakers and 6'6" Pete Simmons of Victoria.

STRONG DUO
In addition, the A's have 6'7" Neil Dirom and 6'6" Don Kregg, who form the strongest two-way duo in the league and rank highly in the Dominion.

Starry guard Larry Lehtonen will round out the starting five and 6'1" Colin McPherson, 6'3" Gunnar Kuehn, 6'4" Bill Pitcher, 6'1" Tommy Watts, 6'1" Ray DeVries and 6' Jim Bishop will provide an adequate backstop.

When asked to go out on a limb, Speidel, recalling that his B.C. final series prediction of Alberni in five games had come true, said, "We'll go all the way. A Canadian title in three straight games."

In the opener, the A's will go against Montreal Dow Brewers, who will be led by 6'7" John McKibbin, the former Canadian Olympic player in Tokyo, and 6'1" George Bork, who has scored 27 points per game.

Daignault will form the starting five, with backing from 6'3" Leroy Riley, 5'10" Bob Morgan, 6'3" Danny Kanath and 6'1" Steve Hilco.

In the tourney opener, Winnipeg St. Andrews Dunlops, also highly rated, will tangle with the Hamilton Quigleys.

Probable starters for Dunlops are 6'4" Fred Ingaldson, two-time Olympic team choice, and 6'6" Don McLean.

Three former UBC stars, 6' Laurie Prednichuk, 6'1" Jack Lusk and 6'4" John Cook will round out the starting line.

They will receive adequate bench strength from 6'5" Bill Carpenter and Dave Mills, 6'4" Wayne Johnson, 6'3" Cliff Stark, 5'9" Grant Alphonso, 6' Glen Torgersen, 5'9" Billy Wright and 6'2" Bud Grant, coach of the footballing Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Wayne Osborne, another 6'5" former UBC star, will place the Hamilton Quigleys, along with 6'3" Al Schlosser and 6'3" Brian Hotrum.

With these three forwards, the starting guards will be Bob Ross at 5'10" and 6'1" Doug Harrison.

Alternates will be 6'3" Doug Hay, 6'4" Bob Tattie, 6'2" Andy Richters, 6' Cliff Goodwin, 6'1" Brian Middle-miss and 5'11" Gord Davidson.

Draw for tonight will see Winnipeg and Hamilton tangle in the series opener at 7 p.m.

In the second game, Athletics will host the Montreal Brewers, with game time at 9:30 p.m. On Friday, the losers will play at 7 p.m., with one being eliminated and the winners tangle at 9 p.m.

The tourney will continue on Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and could wind up on Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

If a seventh game is needed, it will be held on Monday, at 8:30 p.m.

Each night, the 1,400-plus capacity Athletic Hall is expected to be sold out. Laurie J. Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, will, along with other civic dignitaries, participate in the opening ceremonies. Preceding the game, the visiting players and officials will be treated to bus tours of local industries.

Referees named are Hal Mauthe of Winnipeg, Milt Welcher of Montreal, Maury Mulhearn and Gordon McDonald, both of Vancouver, George Siborne of Nanaimo, and Pat Sweeney of Port Alberni. The six referees will be under the direction of Jim Sawyer of Alberni.

Bucks Jolt Leafs Seattle Saves Day

Portland Buckaroos, in top form and fresh from an evenly-spaced schedule which had them playing only their fourth game in 11 days, last night forced Victoria Maple Leafs to mark time in their effort to nail down the fourth Western Hockey League playoff spot.

Playing before 6,956 home-town fans, the Buckaroos extended the season's longest win streak to seven games by routing the weary Vancouver Islanders, 8-3.

Only consolation for the Leafs was that Seattle Totems gave them a hand by keeping San Francisco Seals a point behind with a 3-1 win in San Francisco.

Buckaroos had the game won last night before the Leafs could get the kinks out, scoring three times before the game was four minutes old and getting a fourth goal in the ninth minute.

Tom McVie set the pattern for things to come in the first minute by intercepting a Victoria clearing pass, relaying to Gerry Goyer and then taking a return pass for his 34th goal.

Dick Van Impe was back just a minute later for the 2-0 goal, accepting a pass from Art Jones.

Then, at 3:38, Andy Heberton, completed a three-way play with linemates McVie and Goyer for 3-0.

Arnie Schmautz, whose recent return to form has been a big factor in the Portland surge, got the other first-period goal and Jones made it 5-0 before Lou Jankowski cashed the rebound on a shot by Gordie Redahl in the second period.

MISSING CHANCE

Leafs missed a chance to cut the margin late in the second period and early in the third when they had a manpower edge and Jones and Doug Messier ran the count to 7-1 before Rolfe Wilcox and Danny Belisle got goals just over a minute apart.

It was the second defeat in five games of a six-game road trip for the Leafs, who go to Vancouver Friday and host the Canucks here Saturday while the Seals entertain the Totems again Friday.

SEALS STOPPED

Seattle's sturdy defence, which permitted only 17 shots at rookie Bob Gray, thwarted the Seals.

Jim Powers, set up by Guyle Fielder, broke a 1-1 tie in the ninth minute of the third period and Chuck Holmes put it away by scoring into an empty San Francisco goal in the last minute.

Jumping Jack Norris

Boston NHL Spoilers

Bruins Shock Black Hawks

NHL game after no better than a 3.84 goals-against average in 35 Western Hockey League games, who made the difference.

Norris got in front of 32 shots and received a big ovation from the 10,592 fans when the final whistle sounded.

It came just two seconds after Norris had missed his second shutout, Camille Henry beating him at 19:58 of the third period.

ONLY FIVE

Difference has been made by the Bruins, who have taken only five points from Canadiens and seven from Wings this season while gaining 10 from Chicago and 11 from Toronto Maple Leafs.

And the difference has come in the modest Boston streak of five wins and a tie in the last 10 games. The Bruins have won two from the Hawks in that streak, won two and tied one against Toronto and lost three to the Wings.

TOP THREE

Bruins finish against the top three contenders, playing Montreal twice and Chicago and Detroit (tonight) once each.

Once again it was the goaltending of large Jack Norris, a rookie playing only his 19th game, who made the difference.

Image Makers Shun Yankees

Al Capone Easier Client

By JIM MURRAY

The scene is the plush Madison Avenue office of "Image Makers, Inc.," a high-powered public relations firm whose slogan is "the impossible, we do by 11 o'clock," or "we're No. 3, we try hardest."

Lester I. Smart, the executive vice-president, is on the phone. Lester I. is trying hardest at the moment to make his secretary kiss him. Reluctantly, he picks up the gold French phone which a brass plate identifies as the one Marshal Pétain used to surrender France in 1940. Vichy France was one of 131 Inc.'s earliest accounts.

"Ralph Houk? Ralph, baby, how are you? How's the old CBS subsidiary? Pancake make-up for the infield this year, eh, baby?"

"What? It's about the image? The Yankees' image? Pish, tush, Ralphie, a mere bagatelle. Can we handle it? Ralphie, can a Sicilian make pizza? Can Betty Davis smoke?"

Tough Job?

"A tough job? Ralphie, don't make me laugh. Who do you think got Benedict Arnold on Fourth of July fireworks? Recall who it was almost got Hermann Goering named grand marshal of the Rose "Parade" Ralphie, we could get Nasser into Hillcrest? Who do you think it was got the 1919 Black Sox on bubble-gum cards? Ralphie, baby, we could get Cassius Clay elected governor of Alabama.

In the primary? I may point out with pride who it was who got Count Dracula honorary chairman of the blood bank drive. Ralph, with a big-enough budget, we could get the man-eating shark for the national emblem. Al Capone could have been head of the FBI if he came to us. You got nothing to worry about, Ralphie. The Yankees will be the most lovable team since Laurel and Hardy before we get through."

Work to Do

He hangs up. "All right, Miss Higgenbottom, straighten your lipstick and get off my knee. Imagine this silly love-making, we got work to do. Get me my assistant, Poison Penny."

A few minutes later, there's a knock on the door, and a furtive little character with a pointed nose, beady little eyes and sharp pointed teeth enters. This is Poison Penny who is married to Lester Smart's sister and is thus known in the industry as "Brother-in-Law Rat." He works for 10 per cent of the gross, and all the cheese he can eat. He simmers into a chair, looks around to make sure no cats are about, and opens a folder.

Lester takes off his glasses wearily, pinches the bridge of his nose between his thumb and forefinger and sighs. "All right, what's the bad news, what have these guys been doing, campaigning for cancer?"

Could Improve

"Almost, Boss," Poison agrees quickly. "I have gone over the files and, believe me, this crew could improve their public image by going out and painting moustaches on George Washington, pushing Little Orphan Annie into traffic, or drowning her dog Sandy. Boss, if these guys died, not even George Jessel could think of something nice to say. These guys wouldn't accept a collect call from their mother if she was kidnapped. Boss, they make Central Park muggers look like public benefactors. It's my guess they sleep in caskets."

Lester puts his head down on the desk and starts to sob.

"Other guys on the street get Albin Schwartz, Ladybird, Perry Como and the Good Ship Lollipop. Me, I get gangrene, the Black Mustang, the White Citizens Council and the purple people eaters, and now, the New York Yankees. All right, tell me the worst."

Poison clears his throat

"Well, it goes back to 1928 when their manager, Miller Huggins, died. Lovable little fellow. Fellow named Christy Walsh had to phone up the management and tell them for God's sakes to send some flowers."

"Great, great!" moans Lester. "Then, they have this great star, Babe Ruth. I mean, Boss, a sweetheart. You know, Big, lovable, fat guy with a positive genius for hitting home runs. Not an ounce of harm in him. Goes around to hospitals visiting sick kids and old ladies. Boss, next to Santa Claus he's the most popular image in history."

Lester shudders. "And when he was through they just gave him a minor job, eh?" He fears the worst.

Poison sighs. "Boss, they kicked him right out the door—right out the door! And I don't think they even opened it. They wouldn't even let him sell peanuts in their ballpark."

Lester groans. "Go on," he sobs.

Out of Disney

"They got this lovable old character of a manager, I mean, Boss, like he's right out of Hans Christian Andersen or a Disney movie. Little old gawdied fellow, makes you smile just to look at him. He's got a way of talking could make the phone book seem like Joe Miller, y'know what I mean?"

"But he was a loser? I mean, he couldn't win pennants—world series?" Lester guesses hopefully.

Poison shakes his head. "Every year, practically, he won. He won the year they fired him."

"Fired him?" moans Lester, covering his eyes. "Oh, no! Good Lord, why don't I get an easy account—like the Benedict Arnold account. Why does Dull, Dim and Burnup get all the cushy whitewash jobs—like the Mafia?"

There's More

"There's more," says Poison Penny grimly. "there's this character they had catching for them over the years, Boss, are ya ready? His name is Yogi Berra. Right! The one they made a that lovable cartoon character out of. They kid him around the league. Bring him comic books and bananas. He's got ears out to here. He's got this kind of sad face. He walks funny. When I tell you kids love him, it's only half of it. He takes his hat off in the presence of ladies. He's a family man, a churchgoer. And how he can hit that old apple! He personally

Two More Victories For Canadian Rink

PERTH, Scotland (CP)—Canada defeated Scotland 9-7 Wednesday to run its record to 4-1 in the international curling championships here.

The Wednesday night victory together with a 19-3 win over Switzerland earlier in the day left the Canadian team tied with the United States in won-lost records.

However, the U.S., which defeated Norway 22-5 and Switzerland 19-3, was placed first because it had scored more shots.

In other games Wednesday, Sweden defeated Scotland 10-9 and then Norway 8-7.

The four leading rinks will play off today to determine two finalists in the competition, won by Canada since it was started in 1959.

The Canadian rink, skipped by Terry Braunstein, 25, of Winnipeg, will meet Scotland in one playoff and the United States will play Sweden in the other.

Scotland and Sweden have 3-2 records.

Sweden's afternoon victory over Scotland was considered an upset. The four curling doctors that make up the team were not expected to beat two-time Scottish champion Rick Hay.

Turning point in the game came in the eighth end when Hay was heavy on a draw shot and slid to the back rings, allowing Sweden to count four and go ahead 8-5.

Hay got back in contention with a pair in the ninth, gave up one in the 10th and then scored singles in the 11th and 12th to tie the game 9-9.

SAVES GAME

Swedish skip, Dr. Torbjörn Rydman, saved the game in the 12th when, with Scotland lying two on the four-foot ring, he drew in to cut Hay down to one point and prevent a Scottish victory. In the extra end of his first shot, Rydman again pulled around guards to the button. Hay tried to follow on his last rock but was six inches short allowing Sweden to count one.

"It is the best win Sweden has ever had in curling," Rydman said after the game. Canada had to stage a remarkable come-from-behind effort on constantly changing ice to sneak past Scotland. It took a patented double take-out and roll by Don Duguid, 29, named outstanding third in the 1965 Canadian championship, to set up a three-end in the 11th which enabled Braunstein's rink to regain the lead they had relinquished in the third end.

Duguid's tremendous take-out through a cluttered front of the house enabled Canada to lie two. The exceptionally heavy ice caused Hay, on both his shots, and Braunstein on his first, to fall short of the house. Braunstein, on his last rock, threw the first out-turn draw of the end and pulled into the button to count three.

"I had to throw what would have been heavy take-out weight in the early ends to get there," said Braunstein. "The ice changed so much we needed an extra 20 feet in weight by the last end."

AFFECTED ICE

The reason was the heat generated by a crowd of 1,500—most of them on the Scotland—Canada side of the arena—and bright television lights which were being used for the first time in the tournament.

By the third end they began to turn the ice into a heavy sheet on which the rocks bent up to eight feet approaching the house.

"By the end of the game, it wasn't really curling," said the Canadian skip. "We were just shuffling and guessing by that time."

After Canada went ahead 8-7 on the three end in the 11th, both rinks tried to hide behind stones which fell short in the 12th. On Braunstein's last shot he drew to the four-foot ring to lie one. Hay wrecked on his own front guard in attempting to follow and allowed Canada to count the final point.

ONLY HOPE

The point-spread rule meant the U.S. had to run up as big a score as possible in its final game against Switzerland in the hopes Canada would win its game.

"We felt embarrassed trying to play that way," said Summerville. "But it was our only hope to finish first. This we could do only if Canada won. If Scotland won, their points spread would have been greater than ours."

End - by - end scores of the Canadian-Swiss contest:

Canada 010 445 103 201—19
Switzerland 010 000 010 010—3

The end-by-end scores of the Canadian-Scottish game:

His Shot Went Light There Went Fight

Alberta	4-1
Manitoba	4-1
Ontario	4-1
New Scotia	4-1
British Columbia	4-1
New Brunswick	4-1
Prince Edward Island	4-1
Saskatchewan	4-1
Newfoundland	4-1
Quebec	4-1

TORONTO (CP)—A miss by Ontario's Ray Grant early in the match against Lee Green of Calgary allowed Alberta to register a 10-8 victory and take over the lead in the 11-rink round-robin national mixed curling championship here Wednesday.

Grant, trailing 4-3 after four ends, missed a draw to Alberta's shot rock sitting on the back of the four-foot circle with his last stone of the fifth end. The shot would have given him a tie, but the Unionville sharpshooter was light and the rock died about five feet in front of the house.

It gave Alberta four stones and Green never relinquished the lead.

In other fifth round matches Wednesday afternoon, New Brunswick edged Quebec 8-7, British Columbia defeated Saskatchewan 11-10, Northern Ontario edged Prince Edward Island 8-7 in an extra end and Newfoundland defeated Nova Scotia 10-7.

Manitoba, skipped by defending champion Ernie Boushy of Winnipeg, who sat out the fifth round, was second with a 4-0 won-lost record.

In the fourth round Wednesday, Alberta edged Newfoundland 6-5, Manitoba defeated New Brunswick 9-8, P.E.I. beat B.C. 6-5, Nova Scotia defeated Saskatchewan 9-4, and Northern Ontario defeated Quebec 10-6.

Howe Ready

DETROIT (CP)—Manager-coach Sid Abel of Detroit Red Wings said Wednesday night winger Gordie Howe has recovered from a charley-horse suffered Sunday night and will return to the lineup for tonight's game against Boston Bruins here.

Badminton Open Race

Although the defending singles champions, Wayne Macdonnell of Vancouver and Tina Baranaga of Port Angeles, will not be on hand to defend their honours in the B.C. Open badminton championships, which start tomorrow at the Victoria Racquets Club, an outstanding entry promises some excellent competition.

With Macdonnell on a three-player Canadian team in England and Miss Baranaga attending a university in Arizona, Bert Ferguson of Vancouver and Caroline Jensen of Port Angeles have been picked as the shuttlers to beat in the singles' events.

HUNT SECOND

Victoria's Bob Hunt is second-seeded in the men's events with Bruce Rollick and Rolf Patterson of Vancouver next, in that order.

Miss Jensen, the seedings indicate, should get her biggest argument from Mimi Nilsson, Fran Weaver and Claire Lovett of Vancouver, seeded in that order behind the Port Angeles ace.

BEST IN DOUBLES

Rolf and Ed Paterson are seeded first in the men's doubles with two Vancouver pairings, Rollick and Bud Dobson and Dave McCaffrey and Ferguson, and the Victoria combination of Hunt and Hedley rated the best chances of upsetting the defending champions.

Miss Jensen and Susie Wilson of Port Angeles are top seeded in the ladies' doubles, followed by Mrs. Lovett and Jean Bardsley of Vancouver, Jean Massey of Victoria and Joyce Jones of Vancouver and Mrs. Weaver and Mrs. Nilsson.

Miss Jensen and Ed Paterson of Vancouver top the mixed doubles seeding. No. 2 are Mrs. Nilsson and Rolf Patterson. No. 3 are Miss Jensen and Ferguson and No. 4 are Judy Humber of Victoria and Rollick.

Visiting players won't start play until after 6 tomorrow evening. Finals are scheduled for Sunday afternoon.

John Ferguson Lacrosse Coach

MONTREAL (CP)—John Ferguson, the Montreal Canadiens

hockey player who has been rated among the country's top lacrosse stars, plans to return to lacrosse competition this summer.

Ferguson, who played formerly in British Columbia, has agreed to act as playing coach of Sorel Titans of the Quebec Lacrosse League. He sat out last season but played previously in Nanaimo.

Several teams in the league had been bidding for Ferguson's services.

A spokesman for the Titans said the club also hopes to obtain the services of Cliff Pennington, a former Boston Bruins hockey player who also doubles as a lacrosse performer.

COURTENAY — Courtenay's St. Patrick's Day parade was a one-vehicle affair this year.

Maritime Crash Kills Eight

UPPER MUSQUODOBOIT, N.S. (CP)—Eight persons died Wednesday when a twin-engine passenger plane blew apart in the sky and crashed into a nearby valley.

Seven bodies have been recovered. The eighth is believed lodged in the plane's nose section.

Five department of transport officials have joined airline officials and police on the slopes of picturesque Musquodoboit valley for a detailed investigation.

Eastern Provincial Airways' Flight 102 from Moncton to St. John's, Nfld., blew apart minutes after taking off from Halifax International Airport, 30 miles west of here. It carried five passengers and a crew of three.

Wreckage was scattered over an area about two miles square, indicating the Handley Page Dart-Herald aircraft broke apart in the air. An eye-witness to the crash said he heard an explosion and saw the tail section "blow off."

Passengers aboard the aircraft were:

Gordon R. MacDonald, 36, Sydney businessman.

Henry F. Leidl, of Spryfield, a Halifax suburb, president of Canadian Structural Laminates Ltd. Mr. Leidl, father of nine, served in the RCAF for 20 years, retiring in December as a lieutenant-commander.

Harold Moore, about 30, of Scarborough, Ont., salesman.

Owen Embree of Wellington, N.S., a crew member on the transport department ice-breaker Labrador.

Arthur Blades of Barrington Passage, N.S., an employee of Moncton Construction Ltd., Deer Lake, Nfld.

The crew:

Capt. R. F. Murtagh, 46, of Riverview, N.B., pilot.

R. C. Clements, 41, of Moncton, co-pilot.

Doris Chevarie, 25, of Moncton, stewardess.

SUNNY, COOL

The plane took off from Halifax at 9:15 a.m. for Sydney, where it was due at 10:10 a.m. The weather was sunny and cool with 15 mile-an-hour north-west winds.

First word of the crash came from Mrs. Ervin Miller, who lives about four miles south of Upper Musquodoboit. She heard "a deafening roar" and ran to a window.

SOMERSAULTING

"I looked up and saw pieces of material somersaulting in the air," she said.

She telephoned the RCAF rescue centre at Halifax and the RCMP.

Dr. McGeer spearheaded the MLA team of Education

Minister Peterson, Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell, Liberal leader Ray Perrault, Omnica leader Cyril Sheldford and New Democrat

Dave Barrett of Dewdney, Alex MacDonald of Vancouver East and Dave Stupich of Nanaimo.

For the good guys, there was an assortment of lard normally seen meditating in the legislative press gallery.

Following the questionable victory, captain McGeer cancelled a scheduled press conference out of respect for the losers.

He also read a telegram from the Japanese women's Olympic volleyball team challenging the Terrors to a series. The telegram was signed by Tokyo Rose.

On a more serious note, director Burgess pointed out that an hour's workout a day would put everyone in good shape.

"The time they'd lose here would be made up threefold in increased productivity," he said, adding that most men are physically middle-aged at 25.

Federal Judge Clears Road Big March: Go-Ahead

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI)—A federal judge, citing "enormous" wrongs against Negroes, Wednesday ordered Gov. George Wallace and other officials not to interfere with a massive march from Selma to Montgomery.

Federal Judge Frank M. Johnson approved a plan for a march, probably beginning Sunday, complete with support vehicles. He ordered Gov. Wallace, highway patrol chief Al Lingo and Dallas county sheriff Jim Clark to protect the marchers.

Gov. Wallace's office announced that the governor will go on statewide television today to address a joint session of the legislature, presumably concerning the ruling. He had no comment Wednesday night.

Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. said there would be an announcement today on when the march would begin.

Judge Johnson said the march, which would presumably tie up traffic on the 45 miles of highway from Selma to Montgomery, "reaches . . . to the outer limits of what is constitutionally allowed."

"However, the wrongs and injustices inflicted upon these plaintiffs . . . have clearly exceeded—and continue to exceed—the outer limits of what is constitutionally permissible."

His order enjoined the Alabama officials from "harassing, arresting, threatening or in any way interfering with the march."

The ruling came after a five-day hearing on the request for an injunction. The first attempt at a Selma-to-Montgomery walk on March 7 ended in a bloody melee when police routed the demonstrators with tear gas and clubs.

Another attempt two days later was turned back without incident.

Judge Johnson also restrained state and county officials "from failing to provide protection" for the march.

Gov. Wallace said Sunday that if Judge Johnson restrained him from stopping the march, he would obey and urge the public to let the parade go peacefully.

Meanwhile in Selma police jailed 36 white demonstrators, many of them clergymen from the north, when they attempted to picket the home of Mayor Joe Smithman.

Public Scandal Fear Voiced in Land Deal

A public scandal may erupt if government-owned land in West Vancouver is sold to private developers, Dewdney NDP member Dave Barrett suggested in the legislature Wednesday.

He charged the developers are negotiating with the government to buy land in Cypress Bowl set aside for park purposes 21 years ago.

RECREATIONAL PROJECT

He said the land was acquired in 1944 in a swap for timberland but last year a group represented by Vancouver public relations man William Clancy announced a $10,000,000 recreational project for the land.

Lands Minister Williston said the area has never been dedicated as parkland and the government has no firm recommendation from West Vancouver on its wishes. He would give no assurance that none of the land will be sold to private concerns.

The chairman of the legislature's standing committee on forestry, Cyril Sheldford (SC-Omnica), backed opposition demands for more returns from B.C. forests.

High taxes are not the answer, he said, nor is wide-open competition in timber sales because this would force costs up and make B.C. companies less competitive in the world market.

Mr. Sheldford drew opposition applause with his suggestion that B.C. should own 20 per cent of the shares of forest companies after 10 years in which the company could recoup its investment.

A minister-appointed commission will recommend whether an area should enter into joint services, said Municipal Affairs Minister Campbell.

He explained an area which does not wish to participate in joint services may request a commission to consider whether the area should be included. The minister would appoint the commission.

The congressmen said Delgado, who master-minded the 1961 hijacking of the Portuguese liner Santa Maria at sea, was executed immediately without trial, by a firing squad.

POPULATION EXPLOSION

The Audubon Society's annual bird count in Washington has discovered that there now are some 427,000 purple grackles in residence, up from last year's tally of 23.

mission and would make a final decision based on its recommendations.

A delegation of about 25 blind people from Vancouver met cabinet ministers and other government officials in a bid for repeal of a controversial act passed last year but never implemented.

The act allows the cabinet to set up a three-man board to control all canvassing, selling and promotions by or for blind people. The board has never been set up and the lobbyists want the bill thrown out.

For a little more than an hour the legislature considered bills introduced by private members on the opposition side.

They discussed legal status of members of the purchasing commission, rights of ordinary citizens to sue the government, electronic eavesdropping, and the need for provincial firework regulations. Progress at the end of the debate: nil.

MLAs Cheat Press

The following unbiased report was prepared after a team of MLAs had whipped the legislative press gallery two games straight in a best-of-three volleyball series at the VICA Wednesday.

By GARY OAKES

We were robbed, they cheated and the refereeing was fixed—but even at that it was still fun.

Actually, they hammered us 35-8 and 15-11 even though we had Rapid Ray Williston on our side.

It was the first of what may become an annual fiasco between the Tri-Party Terrors and the Gallery Goliaths.

Terrors' team captain Dr. Pat McGeer (L-Vancouver-Point Grey) received the Straits and Sprains Trophy from the Y's physical director, Art Burgess, who acted as referee (and is suspected of point fixing on the side).

The trophy features a bottle of liniment mounted in mahogany and will be held by the Terrors until the Three-car collisions are rare, but there were two of them in Greater Victoria Wednesday.

A spectacular crash at Tattersall and Savannah in Saanich caused $2,100 damage to the three cars and sent two drivers to hospital.

The 3:30 p.m. accident occurred when a car driven by Mark E. Haynes, 16, eastbound on Tattersall, collided with two west-bound cars.

Driver of the first of these was identified as Walter Vallette, 39, of Edmonton. He and a passenger were uninjured.

Eva Billeh, 23, 56 Midwood, was identified as driver of the third car. Miss Billeh and the Haynes youth were released from Jubilee Hospital after treatment.

Only pride and automobiles were damaged when three cars collided at Uplands and Lansdowne.

Oak Bay police said a car driven on Uplands by Edith Day, 4299 Gordon Head Road, collided with a car driven by Joan Riley, 2175 Exeter, driving it into a car driven by Susan Gill, 3681 Crestview Road.

Research Institutes should be established to take over activities at present performed by royal commissions, a political science professor who worked on the Glasco Commission said Wednesday.

This commission, headed by J. Grant Glasco, investigated government organization.

Prof. John Edwin Hodgetts of Queens University told the University of Victoria political science forum that royal commissions are "an expensive way of conducting research."

He cited the $3,000,000 spent on the Glasco Commission.

Greater Victoria school board's summer session will begin July 5 in Oak Bay Senior High School.

More than 550 students from the Victoria district are expected to attend the session.

"The session is intended to help students pass from junior high school to senior high with a clean slate," Mr. Brown said.

The destroyer-escort HMCS Qu'Appelle and ocean-escorts Jonquiere and Ste. Therese left Esquimalt Wednesday for exercises off the U.S. west coast. Later they will meet with HMCS Yukon, Sussexvale, and New Glasgow, returning from exercises near Mexico.

Greater Victoria school board's summer session will begin July 5 in Oak Bay Senior High School.

More than 550 students from the Victoria district are expected to attend the session.

"The session is intended to help students pass from junior high school to senior high with a clean slate," Mr. Brown said.

The destroyer-escort HMCS Qu'Appelle and ocean-escorts Jonquiere and Ste. Therese left Esquimalt Wednesday for exercises off the U.S. west coast. Later they will meet with HMCS Yukon, Sussexvale, and New Glasgow, returning from exercises near Mexico.

Research Institutes should be established to take over activities at present performed by royal commissions, a political science professor who worked on the Glasco Commission said Wednesday.

This commission, headed by J. Grant Glasco, investigated government organization.

Prof. John Edwin Hodgetts of Queens University told the University of Victoria political science forum that royal commissions are "an expensive way of conducting research."

He cited the $3,000,000 spent on the Glasco Commission.

Winning

By HOWARD SCHENKE

In bridge, as in life—one is frequently rewarded for being a good listener. To an enterprising declarer, an opponent's failure to bid is sometimes even more revealing than a winning action.
Today's declarer has made good use of this silence to bring home his contract.

South's problem began on the first round of bidding:
East's opening bid left him with no satisfactory call. His actual hand was not strong enough for a no trump overcall, and a takeout double might force a heart suit. Many players would have bid South's hand despite its lack of strength.

North's final bid was a gamble on partner's being optimistic and confident enough to bid. Note that West could have bid to avoid a four-trick contract but lost in each suit.

West's lead of the spade East played the eight as a declarer lead. The heart queen; perhaps East would be believing South to have both. Both defenders played a pause to take stock. If the diamond king would also be who was marked with this opening lead would be two kings as well.

West's lead of the diamond 3-3 break or a double declarer nine tricks: two monies and a club. Alas, the by West's king, and the declarer had continued.

If South had continued he repeated the finesse must have the king. Up the king dropped (along with

Cost:

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism cost the government $1,424,640 up to Jan. 31, the Commons was informed Wednesday.

There are 125 full-time employees under the commission's 16 commissioners, said Jack Davis, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson. The commissioners are paid $100 for each day they spend on commission duties.

No Showdown —But It Costs

OTTAWA (CP) — The minority Liberal government averted a showdown vote on the bilingual issue in the Commons Wednesday.

Prime Minister Pearson bowed to opposition pressure and announced at the opening of the sitting that the long-delayed plan would be set aside until translators working around the clock complete the French version of pension committee proceedings.

PERHAPS MONDAY
He said the final stages of the debate will resume after the French report is available to French-speaking MPs "early next week," perhaps Monday.

Mr. Pearson said his government is working hard to establish an "absolute equality" between the two official languages in the public service but there are practical difficulties to be overcome.

CREDITISTES REFUSE
Despite appeals from government and opposition sides of the Commons, the Creditiste members decline to withdraw their motion to require both French and English versions of the pension committee evidence.

SPEAKER ALAN MACNAUGHTON put off until Monday further debate on a motion by Gerard Perron Creditiste-Belue to shelve the pension plan until the French report is published.

PERRON ADAMANT
Mr. Pearson, Opposition Leader Diefenbaker and New Democratic Leader Douglas all asked Mr. Perron to withdraw his motion in the light of the prime minister's announcement but the Creditiste MP refused.

The prime minister said later he had no objection to postponing further debate on the pension plan and proceeding with other government business until the translation is produced.

Voters' List Duplications 'Ran Up to 40 Per Cent'

OTTAWA (CP) — A letter tabled in the Commons Wednesday charges that 40 per cent of the names on 1963 Burnaby-Coquitlam voters lists appeared on the lists of other federal ridings in British Columbia.

Burnaby-Coquitlam is represented in the Commons by New Democratic Leader Douglas.

Allegations about "alarming concentrations" of duplicated voters lists were contained in a letter sent to the Commons elections committee nearly a year ago by Morland T. Brown of 511 Jefferson Ave. New Westminster, B.C.

SEEN RECENTLY

The letter was tabled Wednesday by Maurice J. Moreau (L.-York—Scarborough), chairman of the elections committee, who said in an accompanying letter he did not see Mr. Brown's letter until March 8 of this year.

On that date, Mr. Moreau sent a copy of the Brown letter to Mr. Justice Nathaniel T. Nemetz of the B.C. Supreme Court, who was named by the federal government to conduct a judicial inquiry into alleged vote-rigging in several B.C. ridings in the 1963 federal election.

ARTICLES PUBLISHED

The Vancouver Province published articles alleging six unidentified Labor unions conspired to rig votes in favor of New Democratic candidates in several B.C. ridings. There are nine NDP members from B.C.

In a letter dated April 27, Mr. Brown said he had studied voters lists for all 22 federal constituencies in B.C. for 3,000 hours over a period of 13 months and found "startling facts."

The key portion of the five-page longhand letter read as follows:
"Poll one Burnaby-Coquitlam was duplicated elsewhere in B.C. to the extent of 40 per cent. The same area in the B.C. provincial election was duplicated."

Ruling Pleases Johnson

WASHINGTON (UPI)—President Johnson said Wednesday he was pleased that the issue of the Selma-Montgomery march had been settled in court. He urged everyone concerned "to respond fairly" in accordance with "our traditional reliance upon law and order."

"As I have said before, this is where the issue should be settled."

Taylor Explains Inaction

Fear, Inability Stop Reds

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador Maxwell Taylor believes Moscow and Peking have not responded to the U.S. raids on North Viet Nam because of a combination of fear and inability, it was disclosed Wednesday.

(Communist China at the same time charged President Johnson was "a Hitler-type bandit and a war criminal" for ordering the raids. But its broadcasts, heard in Tokyo, made no mention of military action.)

Taylor made his statement in an interview with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation.

It contained these main points:

● There is no truth to the idea that the South Vietnamese are reluctant to fight the Communists.

● Negotiations now are impossible because "one can hardly negotiate one's freedom."

● Communist North Viet Nam's control of the Viet Cong "is absolute."

Mr. Taylor was asked why Communist China and the Soviet Union have not retaliated with military action against the bombing of North Vietnamese targets.

"One can't be sure," he replied. "Probably a combination of two factors: inability to respond adequately, and second, the fear of escalation, the realization that the risks of escalation are too great on their side to justify taking any great chances."

Mr. Taylor was asked by his interviewer, CBC commentator Tom Gould, if the United States might not be trying "to save from Communism a country that doesn't want to be saved."

"No, I don't see how anyone can arrive at that conclusion."

South Viet Bombs Kill 30 Children

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (Reuters)—South Vietnamese planes bombed a village near here Wednesday, killing an estimated 45 villagers, including 30 school children, military sources here said Wednesday.

A Communist Viet Cong flag was seen flying over the village, Man Quang, about 375 miles north-east of Saigon.

U.S. Planes Pound More Red Targets

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (CP)—Six U.S. Air Force Thunderchief fighter bombers streaked westward under fighter escort Wednesday and emptied their bomb racks of more than 20 tons of high explosives, apparently on Communist targets in Laos.

The Laotian frontier—a jungle gateway for Communist Viet Cong recruits and supplies from North Viet Nam—is only 50 miles west of the U.S. marine- guarded Da Nang air base.

FIGHTERS ALSO
Accompanying the supersonic jet fighter-bombers were six or more F-100 Super-Sabre fighters.

The strike force returned with no disclosure of the nature of its mission or the results.

A blackout and air raid drill in Hanoi Tuesday night suggested North Viet Nam fears its capital might become a target of U.S.-South Vietnamese air raids, though the closest strike so far has been 100 miles away.

VIET CONG BLASTED
About 24 U.S. B-57 jet-bombers blasted Viet Cong guerrilla positions in Binh Duong province south of Saigon.

A U.S. military spokesman said an American soldier was killed and three others were injured when South Vietnamese forces attacked Viet Cong troops in helicopter and riverborne operations about 65 miles southwest of Saigon Tuesday. He estimated Communist losses at 50 dead.

Citizenship Denied

Still No Room For Godless

TORONTO (CP)—Mr. Justice Schatz of the Ontario Supreme Court upheld Wednesday a Cayuga county judge's decision denying Canadian citizenship to a Dutch husband and wife because they do not believe in God.

Mr. Justice Schatz emphasized in his 41-page judgment that his review is limited only to a consideration of Judge W. W. Leach's jurisdiction and the law as he applied it.

ACT OF 1954

Judge Leach had earlier refused to recommend Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bergama of Caledonia, Ont., as being suitable to be granted citizenship under the Canadian Citizenship Act of 1954.

Mr. Bergama, who came here nine years ago, had admitted to Judge Leach that his family does not attend church. He told the judge that if his children want to join a church, "that is up to them."

NOT EVERYBODY

Judge Leach had replied: "The things that we believe in this country stand for Christianity... being honest and believing in Christ's teachings."

"Not everybody follows this, but that is what we try to attain in this country, the Christian way of life. I feel you must have some kind of faith, but you don't seem to believe in anything from what I can gather."

Judge Leach had ruled that the Bergamas could not take the oath of allegiance as prescribed in the Citizenship Act.

Mr. Justice Schatz said in his report that originally in common law a person could not be accepted as a witness unless he believe in God. He said that nothing in the Citizenship Act has relaxed this requirement.

The judgment noted that the Canadian Bill of Rights, calling for freedom of religion, was passed after the Citizenship Act and its regulations.

BILL OF RIGHTS
The Supreme Court judge said: "The Canadian Parliament has in the Citizenship Act declared the requirements for obtaining the privilege of Canadian citizenship, and the Bill of Rights in no way affects the purpose or effect of that statute."

He said Judge Leach made no error in law that would deprive him of jurisdiction, and the Ontario Supreme Court could not interfere with the judge's decision on that ground.

Roly-Poly King Dies in Exile

From AP-Reuters

ROME (CP)—Ex-King Farouk of Egypt, a roly-poly, lusty-living exile in the Roman dolce vita set, died Wednesday night after being stricken at dinner in a suburban restaurant, police reported. He was 45.

Aides at Rome's San Camillo Hospital said he was dead on arrival last Wednesday night.

There was no immediate word on the cause of death.

WITH A WOMAN

He had gone to the restaurant with a woman companion.

Farouk had lived and luxuriated in Italy most of the time since he was forced to abdicate and exiled in July 1952 by an Egyptian revolutionary officers' group.

HE RULED SINCE 1936
He had ruled since 1936 when, as a handsome boy of 16, he mounted the throne in Cairo to carry on the Mohammed Ali Dynasty that had been set up in the 19th century under the Ottoman Turks.

The 1952 revolution, headed by Maj.-Gen. Mohamed Naguib as the front man and master-minded by Lt.-Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, permitted him to name his only son, the infant Fouad, as his successor.

But the monarchy soon was ended and Egypt became a republic—now called the United Arab Republic with Nasser as president.

'PRINCE CHARMING'

Scandals arising from the Arab defeat by the Israelis in the 1948 Palestine war led to Farouk's downfall.

Although only 45, he looked at least 15 years older.

Farouk was hailed as the "prince charming" who would bring salvation to his country when he ascended the throne.

FAROUK CHANGED

A monarch who squandered the prestige of a throne, he was an unpopular ruler by the time he was 30.

From a tall, handsome and intelligent youth he turned into a bulky and corpulent man, with sparse hair and bad eyes perpetually shielded by dark glasses.

His personal failings were the main cause of his rapid decline in popularity and eventual downfall.

Embassy Razed

BONN (Reuters) — The West German foreign ministry said Wednesday demonstrators had burned down the West German Embassy in Yagu, the capital of Yemen.

State Secretary Karl Carstens protested strongly and demanded punishment for the demonstrators and compensation.

Two Reds In Space

MOSCOW (UPI)—The Soviet Union launched a spaceship with two cosmonauts aboard into orbit around the earth today, the news agency Tass reported.

Tass said the crew consists of ship commander Col. Pavel Belyaev and co-pilot Lt.-Col. Alexei Leonov.

The U.S. is to send two men into space Tuesday. (See Page 9.)

Alberni's Walk-In Counselling Free

Troubles Ironed While You Wait

FORT ALBERNI — Starting Wednesday, anyone in the Alberni Valley with a problem involving finances, marriage, education, religion, employment, personal relationships and the like can walk into an office here and talk about it.

A community counselling service has been formed by a cross-section of professional organizations after three months of preparation.

The local chapter of the Canadian Mental Health Association is sponsoring the service and mental health clinic director, Dr. S. E. Jensen is its chief. He has been training 24 local people, including social workers, school counsellors, nurses, ministers, bankers and lawyers, for three months as a prelude to opening night.

Service spokesman Ronald Tinney said the group was organized to provide a free walk-in counselling service for all Valley citizens.

"It is hoped the service will enable people to see their problems more clearly and have some definite assistance in coping with them," he said. "They will also learn where to turn for further assistance."

The health unit office in Port Alberni will be used by the service from 7 to 9 p.m. Wednesday, April 21, May 19, June 23 and July 22.

Mr. Tinney said that, "should the demand be heavy, it is planned to increase the service by having sessions every two weeks."

Further information may be obtained from Mr. Tinney at 723-6069.

Duncan Recreation Unit

Businessmen Take New Aim at Council

DUNCAN — Directors of the Duncan-Cowichan Chamber of Commerce have decided to go back to city council over the issue of a recreation commission for the city.

Since the Chamber's first request, it has written to several local service clubs asking for their support.

Director Richard Benzie told the Chamber Wednesday the Kiwanis and Kinsmen clubs have gone on record as favoring the idea, and added it is understood other clubs are in the process of taking similar action.

The directors chose Mr. Benzie, Pat Rogers and Cliff Pascoe to ask the city what its next step will be.

The service clubs will be asked to send delegates to the council meeting involved to support the Chamber.

$1,000 GRANT SOUGHT
Chamber directors also chose finance chairman David Pollock to go along with the recreation committee. He will present a brief asking for an increase to $1,000 in the city's annual grant of $600 to the Chamber.

Mr. Pascoe, the Chamber president, suggested the $1,000 figure. The Chamber also plans to ask North Cowichan for a boost to $300 from $100 in its grant.

THREE RESOLUTIONS
The Chamber decided to present three resolutions to the 1965 Associated Island Chambers of Commerce convention in Campbell River Monday and Tuesday. They seek:

● A single trades licence for one economic community formed by several municipalities.

● A more liberal policy opening—under supervision—public parks to such industries as mining and lumbering.

● An extension to April 30 of the qualifying date for the $500 home construction bonus of the bad winter.

JUMP IN BUSINESS
Chamber secretary Art Stevenson disclosed a big jump in business last year at the tourist information bureau.

He said 3,067 tourists visited the bureau, up 12 per cent from the year before. Local callers totalled 2,096, an increase of 28 per cent, and telephone inquiries reached 1,684, or 12 per cent more.

Director Joe Kuzik disclosed an official of the B.C. retail merchants' association will attend the next general meeting in the Chamber information office at 8 p.m. March 25.

MERCHANTS INVITED
Retail merchants, some of whom feel Chamber membership would be of no benefit to them, have been invited to the meeting. One topic will be the problem of agreement between retailers on a specific closing day.

The meeting will also consider the directors' rejection of a nominating committee recommendation that the present slate of officers be returned.

William Jameson took over Wednesday as a director, replacing George Haskins.

Outside Help Sought

Breakwater Bid

CROFTON — The Chemainus-Crofton Chamber of Commerce will seek outside help in its long, unsuccessful campaign to obtain a floating type of breakwater for Chemainus harbor.

Chamber members decided Tuesday night to ask Liberal MP Jack Davis of the mainland riding of Coast-Capilano to present the request to the federal government.

The decision followed a statement that many attempts for a breakwater have failed in the past 15 years.

Members learned the 1965 Dominion Day celebrations in Chemainus will be highlighted by the annual parade and a golf tournament.

A navy display, Indian canoe races and other water sports are planned at nearby Fuller's Lake.

The CPR advised the Chamber improvement of the Chemainus railroad station is unlikely this year because of a heavy work schedule.

Hospitals Probe Chronic Care

DUNCAN — The four member hospitals in the Cowichan Newcastle and Islands Health Council have decided to study the need for chronic care facilities in their big area.

Council officials said Wednesday a committee was set up at a recent Ladysmith meeting to represent Ladysmith General, Chemainus General, Lady Minto Gulf Islands and King's Daughters' hospitals.

It will submit a recommendation on how many chronic care beds are needed in the four districts and where they should be placed.

The move follows the recent provincial government decision to pay for half of the construction of chronic care facilities and place such patients under B.C.H.S. coverage.

The council also said arrangements have been completed with St. Joseph's Hospital in Victoria for a security officer to visit the four hospitals periodically. Employee health tests, group purchasing and accreditation also were discussed.

North Cowichan

Vandalism 'Sickens' Councillor

NORTH COWICHAN — A "sickened" municipal councillor said Wednesday he will put up $25 of his own money for information leading to the conviction of vandals who attacked the Chemainus community centre last Saturday night.

"It just makes me sick . . . it's an absolute disgrace," Coun. Gerry Smith told the weekly North Cowichan council meeting.

$700 DAMAGE
He said vandals knocked down doors, ripped out toilets and tried to tear out the roof of a new changehouse, causing damage estimated at $700.

Coun. Smith's offer came during a meeting which considered two other major issues, customs service in the district and a new bonding system.

COULD NOT UNDERSTAND
He said he could not understand how the vandalism could have occurred, since Chemainus R.C.M.P. checked the building several times that night. It was noted the work was probably not that of children.

Coun. Elaine Dobbins suggested a council reward. Reeve Donald Morton and civic officials will find out if this is possible.

NO CUSTOMS CHANGE
Council learned from the customs and excise department that a consolidation of customs service in the area "is not under active consideration."

Coun. Smith said the Chemainus postoffice is "a disgrace" and urged a new government building for the centre.

BUSINESSMEN AGAINST
A petition signed by 24 businessmen opposed the new bonding system for subcontractors and favored the reeve's proposed single trading area in the Cowichan Valley.

Reeve Morton said he welcomed the petition and "presumes" a similar one will be sent to Duncan. The trading area idea will be discussed by North Cowichan and Duncan next week.

Council also:

● Decided to ask Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation for an urban renewal scheme for the Chemainus area.

● Agreed to discuss with Mount Prevost golf club an application for water supply.

● Set aside an additional $2,200 to build an asphalt footpath this year along Townsite area streets for pupils of Quamichan and Alexander schools.

● Approved a lease renewal for B.C. Forest Products at Crofton.

● Sent to its works committee for action a request from 11 residents for improvement of Phillip Street.

COURTENAY — Courtenay's St. Patrick's Day parade was a one-vehicle affair this year.

Nanaimo

Big Shop Could Start In Fall

NANAIMO — A 25,000-square-foot addition at the Terminal Park shopping centre could be under construction this fall, realtor Dr. Mladen Zorkin told the advisory planning commission Tuesday.

Dr. Zorkin, speaking in response to an invitation from the planners, added two if-ifs: negotiations with an eastern department store chain are successful and if the site can be rezoned for commercial use.

CHAIN STORE

He said he is attempting to interest the chain in opening a branch immediately north of the shopping centre, an area now zoned residential. Smaller stores would be added later.

Dr. Zorkin suggested that, instead of raising a homeowner's taxes when improvements are made, there should be a penalty assessment to those who allow their homes to deteriorate.

He described the southern approach to the city along Nicol Street as "an eyesore" and said that, rather than allowing the area to deteriorate as a residential zone, it should be rezoned to allow commercial and industrial development.

Nanaimo District

Trustees Send Protest Notes

NANAIMO — The district school board disclosed Wednesday night it has sent a letter to the legal department of Canadian Industries Ltd., strongly protesting the sale of Departure Bay property to a syndicate represented by Nanaimo Realty.

Negotiations in 1963 indicated the board might secure a suitable school site from the property before its public sale.

GREATER COST
The letter notes subdivision of the property will mean enough new pupils to "require a school of some size" and the bill to the taxpayers therefore may be "considerably greater."

Another letter of protest will go to two Nanaimo oil suppliers.

The firms supply schools which had furnace failures this year due to an inadequate fuel supply. Rutherford Road, Pauline Haara and Mount Benson elementary schools each had to close for a short time several weeks ago.

THREE YEARS
The board agreed with the University of Victoria to establish a resident professorship here this year. The unidentified professor will conduct first, second and third-year university courses as part of the adult education program.

Trustees learned the board is negotiating for two possible school sites—for a three-room elementary centre in Cedar and for a school in the north end of the district.

Film Showing
The premiere showing of the film The Smartest Boy in Town will take place at the Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 1609 Blanshard Street, at 8:30 p.m. today. Proceeds will go to the institute.

Court Case Closed To Public

COURTENAY — A two-day preliminary hearing involving indecent assault charges was closed to the public in magistrate's court Wednesday on agreement of Magistrate Lionel Beevor-Potts, Crown prosecutor T. G. Ryan and defence counsel A. Sarich.

Donald Breedon, Charles Edward Russell, Barry Gunnar Nelson and James McBie are charged with indecent assault on a 16-year-old girl.

Also facing preliminary hearing on Alfred Scowe and Richard Lawrence Chickite, charged with indecent assault on the 19-year-old sister of the girl involved in the other case.

Brannan Lake 'Inadequate'

Magistrate Says Better Facilities Needed

COURTENAY — A term in Brannan Lake boys' industrial school seems to have little benefit for boys aged from 11 to 18 years, said Magistrate John Ryland, but not because of the school.

He said the blame may be partly due to the overcrowded conditions and quick turnover of inmates at Brannan but added the main problem is lack of alternative treatment centres and, therefore, inadequate resources for treatment within the community.

THE ONLY ONE

The magistrate, speaking to a meeting of the local family and child court committee, urged the group to do all it can to press for improved treatment conditions for juveniles.

He pointed out Brannan is the only institute in B.C. for young male offenders.

Each child has different needs, said Magistrate Ryland, according to his background, age, number of previous offences and potential for academic achievement.

This very fact of necessary makes institutional care fall short of the desirable, he said.

'WOEFULLY INADEQUATE'
One example—a great many of the children at the school need psychiatric help, but services in this field are "woefully inadequate."

Committee members decided a four-member delegation will inspect the school.

Magistrate Ryland pointed to the success of work camps for adult male offenders.

HIS SUGGESTION

He said a routine of good hard physical work of a constructive nature, firm discipline and plenty of food and sleep seems to have produced worthwhile results in many cases.

"This might be what we need for young male offenders," he said.

But the greatest need, said the magistrate, is a home setup to replace "ineffective institutional detention."

He said he would prefer a small farm with a good couple to run it, where children can be treated within the community according to individual need and with psychiatric help available.

Lanes First On '67 List

CUMBERLAND — The Chamber of Commerce has voted to promote a bowling alley as the village's 1967 centennial project.

Chamber members this week chose as their second suggestion a new kitchen for the hospital here and as their third idea development of Kin Park at Comox Lake, where the Chamber would like to see a pool and playground facilities.

Alberni Coach Likes His Club's Chances

By SOHAN RAM

PORT ALBERNI—After having their basketball fans wait for nearly a quarter of a century, Alberni Athletics are finally able to host a Canadian championship basketball tournament and to night's night.

A double-knockout affair, the tourney continues through until Sunday or Monday, with Canada's four top teams, including the Athletics, competing.

SECOND TITLE

Athletics, winners of their ninth B.C. title in the 12 years that Elmer Speidel has been here, are looking for their second Dominion crown, winning their first Canadian title in 1955 when Speidel was playing-coach.

Alberni's chances of coming out on top in this one are "pretty good," according to Speidel, who feels that the A's will be the team to beat.

ALL THE WAY

"We started with little more than nothing at the beginning of the year and now we have come this far," he said. "We want to go all the way now."

"We should be the favored team, I would think. On our own home floor, in our home town and with these two tall guys helping out, we have a strong starting line."

"These two tall guys" are 6'5" Dave Way of New Westminster Bakers and 6'6" Pete Simmonds of Victoria.

STRONG DUO

In addition, the A's have 6'7" Neil Drom and 6'8" Don Kregg, who form the strongest two-way duo in the league and rank highly in the Dominion.

Starry guard Larry Lehtonen will round out the starting five and 6'1" Colin McPherson, 6'3" Gunnar Kuehn, 6'4" Bill "Pitcher," 6'1" Tommy Watts, 6'1" Ray DeVries and 6' Jim Bishop will provide an adequate backdrop.

When asked to go out on a limb, Speidel, recalling that his B.C. final series prediction of Alberni in five games had come true, said, "We'll go all the way. A Canadian title in three straight games."

In the opener, the A's will go against Montreal Dow Brews, who will be led by 6'7" John McKibbin, the former Canadian Olympic player in Tokyo, and 6'1" George Bork, who has scored 27 points per game.

Guard Gary Keating at 6', Al Irwin at 6'4", and 6'2" Doug Daigneault will form the starting five, with backing from 6'3" Leroy Riley, 5'10" Bob Morgan, 6'3" Danny Kanath and 6'1" Steve Hilko.

In the tourney opener, Winnipeg St. Andrews Dunlops, also highly rated, will tangle with the Hamilton Quigleys.

Probable starters for Dunlops are 6'4" Fred Ingaldson, two two Olympic team choice, and 6'6" Don McLean.

Three former UBC stars, 6' Laurie Predinchuk, 6'1" Jack Lusk and 6'4" John Cook will round out the starting line.

They will receive adequate bench strength from 6'5" Bill Carpenter and Dave Mills, 6'4" Wayne Johnson, 6'3" Cliff Stark, 5'9" Grant Alphonso, 6' Glen Torgersen, 5'9" Billy Wright and 6'2" Bud Grant, coach of the footballing Winnipeg Blue Bombers.

Wayne Osborne, another 6'3" former UBC star, will pace the Hamilton Quigleys, along with 6'5" Al Schlosser and 6'5" Brian Hotrum.

With these three forwards, the starting guards will be Bob Ross at 5'10" and 6'1" Doug Harrison.

Alternates will be 6'3" Doug Hay, 6'4" Bob Tattie, 6'2" Andy Richters, 6' Cliff Goodwin, 6'1" Brian Middle-miss and 5'11" Gord Davidson.

Draw for tonight will see Winnipeg and Hamilton tangle in the series opener at 7 p.m.

In the second game, Athletics will host the Montreal Brews, with game time at 9:30 p.m.

On Friday, the losers will play at 7 p.m., with one being eliminated and the winners tangle at 9 p.m.

The tourney will continue on Saturday at 8:30 p.m. and could wind up on Sunday at 2:30 p.m.

If a seventh game is needed, it will be held on Monday, at 8:30 p.m.

Each night, the 1400-plus capacity Athletic Hall is expected to be sold out.

Laurie J. Wallace, deputy provincial secretary, will, along with other civic dignitaries, participate in the opening ceremonies. Preceding the game, the visiting players and officials will be treated to bus tours of local industries.

Referees named were Hal Mauthe of Winnipeg, Milt Welcher of Montreal, Maury Mulhearn and Gordon McDonald, both of Vancouver, George Sborne of Nanaimo, and Pat Sweeney of Port Alberni. The six referees will be under the direction of Jim Sawyer of Alberni.

Portland Buckaroos, in top form and fresh from an evenly-spaced schedule which had them playing only their fourth game in 11 days, last night forced Victoria Maple Leafs to mark time in their effort to nail down the fourth Western Hockey League playoff spot.

Playing before 6,956 home-town fans, the Buckaroos extended the season's longest win streak to seven games by routing the weary Vancouver Islanders, 8-3.

Only consolation for the Leafs was that Seattle Totems gave them a hand by keeping San Francisco Seals a point behind with a 3-1 win in San Francisco.

Buckaroos had the game won last night before the Leafs could get the kinks out, scoring three times before the game was four minutes old and getting a fourth goal in the ninth minute.

Tom McVie set the pattern for things to come in the first minute by intercepting a Victoria clearing pass, relaying to Gerry Goyer and then taking a return pass for his 34th goal.

Dick Van Impe was back just a minute later for the 2-0 goal, accepting a pass from Art Jones. Then, at 3:58, Andy Hebertson completed a three-way play with linemates McVie and Goyer for 3-0.

Arnie Schmutz, whose recent return to form has been a big factor in the Portland surge, got the other first-period goal and Jones made it 5-0 before Lou Jankowski cashed the rebound on a shot by Gordie Redahl in the second period.

MISSING CHANCE
Leafs missed a chance to cut the margin late in the second period and early in the third when they had a manpower edge and Jones and Doug Messier ran the count to 7-1 before Rolfe Wilcox and Danny Belisle got goals just over a minute apart.

It was the second defeat in five games of a six-game road trip for the Leafs, who go to Vancouver Friday and host the Seals here Saturday while the Seals entertain the Totems again Friday.

SEALS STOPPED
Seattle's sturdy defence, which permitted only 17 shots at rookie Bob Gray, thwarted the Seals.

Jim Powers, set up by Guyle Fielder, broke a 1-1 tie in the ninth minute of the third period and Chuck Holmes put it away by scoring into an empty San Francisco goal in the last minute.

Last night's scores: Chicago 1 at Boston 3. Next game: Tonight—Toronto at Montreal; Boston at Detroit.

Boston's improving Bruins dealt Chicago Black Hawks' hopes of a first National Hockey League championship a shattering blow last night by scoring a 2-1 victory on Boston ice.

It was the Bruins' 19th win of the season, highest victory total in five seasons for a club which seems destined to finish last for the fifth straight time.

Result left the Hawks still two points behind the Detroit Red Wings and one ahead of Montreal Canadiens, but the Chicago club has only four games left to six for each of its championship rivals.

ONLY FIVE
Difference has been made by the Bruins, who have taken only five points from Canadiens and seven from Wings this season while gaining 10 from Chicago and 11 from Toronto Maple Leafs.

And the difference has come in the modest Boston streak of five wins and a tie in the last 10 games. The Bruins have won two from the Hawks in that streak, won two and tied one against Toronto and lost three to the Wings.

TOP THREE
Bruins finish against the top three contenders, playing Montreal twice and Chicago and Detroit (tonight) once each.

Once again it was the goaltending of large Jack Norris, a rookie playing only his 19th

NHL game after no better than a 3.84 goals-against average in 35 Western Hockey League games, who made the difference.

Norris got in front of 32 shots and received a big ovation from the 10,592 fans when the final whistle sounded.

Image Makers Shun Yankees

Al Capone Easier Client

By JIM MURRAY

The scene is the plush Madison Avenue office of "Image Makers, Inc." a high-powered public relations firm whose slogan is "the impossible, we do by 11 o'clock," or "we're No. 3, we try hardest."

Lester I. Smart, the executive vice-president, is on the phone. Lester I. is trying hardest at the moment to make his secretary kiss him. Reluctantly, he picks up the gold French phone which a brass plate identifies as the one Marshall Petain used to surrender France in 1940. Vichy France was one of 1.M. Inc.'s earliest accounts.

"Ralph Houk? Ralph, baby, how are you? How's the old CBS subsidiary, Pancake make-up for the infidel this year, eh, baby?"

"What? It's about the image? The Yankees' image? Pish, tush, Ralphie, a mere bagatelle. Can we handle it? Ralphie, can a Seilian make pizza? Can Bette Davis smoke?"

Tough Job?

"A tough job? Ralphie, don't make me laugh. Do you think got Benedict Arnold on Fourth of July fireworks? Recall who it was almost got Hermann. Goering named grand marshal of the Rose Parade? Ralphie, we could get Nasser into Hillcrest! Who do you think it was got the 1919 Black Sox on bubble-gum cards? Ralphie, baby, we could get Cassius Clay elected governor of Alabama.

In the primary? I may point out with pride who it was got Count Dracula honorary chairman of the blood bank drive. Ralph, with a big-enough budget, we could get the man-eating shark for the national emblem. Al Capone could have been head of the FBI if he came to us. You got nothing to worry about, Ralphie. The Yankees will be the most lovable team since Laurel and Hardy before we get through."

Work to Do
He hangs up. "All right, Miss Higgenbottom, straighten your lipstick and get off my knee. Enough of this silly love-making, we got work to do. Get me my assistant, Poison Penny."

A few minutes later, there is a knock on the door, and a furtive little character with a pointed nose, beady little eyes and sharp pointed teeth enters. This is Poison Penny who is married to Lester Smart's sister and is thus known in the industry as "Brother-in-Law Rat."

He works for 10 per cent of the gross, and all the cheese he can eat. He simpers into a chair, looks around to make sure no cats are about, and opens a folder.

Lester takes off his glasses wearily, pinches the bridge of his nose between his thumb and forefinger and sighs. "All right, what's the bad news, what have these guys been doing, campaigning for cancer?"

Could Improve
"Almost, Boss," Poison agrees quickly. "I have gone over the files and, believe me, this crew could improve their public image by going out and painting moustaches on George Washington, pushing Little Orphan Annie into traffic, or drowning her dog Sandy. Boss, if these guys died, not even George Jessel could think of something nice to say. These guys wouldn't accept a collect call from their mother if she was kidnapped. Boss, they make Central Park muggers look like public benefactors. It's my guess they sleep in caskets."

Lester puts his head down on the desk and starts to sob. "Other guys on the street get Albert Schweitzer, Ladybird, Perry Como and the Good Ship Lollipop. Me, I get gangrene, the Black Muslims, the White Citizens Council and the purple people eaters, and now, the New York Yankees. All right, tell me the worst."

Poison clears his throat,

"Well, it goes back to 1928 when their manager, Miller Huggins, died. Lovable little fellow. Fellow named Christy Walsh had to phone up the management and tell them for God's sakes to send some flowers."

"Great, great!" moans Lester. "Then, they have this great star, Babe Ruth. I mean, Boss, a sweetheart. You know. Big, lovable, fat guy with a positive genius for hitting home runs. Not an ounce of harm in him. Goes around to hospitals visiting sick kids and old ladies. Boss, next to Santa Claus he's the most popular image in history."

Lester shudders. "And when he was through they just gave him a minor job, eh?" He fears the worst.

Poison sighs. "Boss, they kicked him right out the door—right out the door! And I don't think they even opened it. They wouldn't even let him sell peanuts in their ballpark."

Lester groans. "Go on," he sobs.

Out of Disney
"They got this lovable old character of a manager, I mean, Boss, like he's right out of Hans Christian Andersen or a Disney movie. Little old gnarled fellow, makes you smile just to look at him. He's got a way of talking like Joe Miller, y'know what I mean?"

"But he was a loser? I mean, he couldn't win pennants—world series?" Lester guesses hopefully.

Poison shakes his head. "Every year, practically, he won. He won the year they fired him."

"Fired him?" moans Lester, covering his eyes. "Oh, no! Good Lord, why don't I get an essay account—like the Benedict Arnold account. Why does Dull, Dim and Burnup get all the cushy white wash jobs—like the Mafia?"

There's More
"There's more," says Poison Penny Grimly. "there's this character they had catching for them over the years. Boss, are ya ready? His name is Yogi Berra. Right! The one they made that lovable cartoon character out of. They kid him around the league. Bring him corned books and bananas. He's got fans out to here. He's got this kind of sad face. He walks funny. When I tell you kids love him, it's only half of it. He takes his hat off in the presence of ladies. He's a family man, a churchgoer. And how can he hit that old apple? He personifies the careers of a half-dozen Yankee-hating pitchers. They're thinking of giving him Don Newcombe to hang in his den. And he's Italian. Boss, I don't have to tell you what that means in New York City."

Lester, eagerly: "So they make him a manager?"

Poison: "Right!"

Lester looks relieved. Then, apprehensive. "He doesn't blow the pennant?" He fears.

Poison looks grim. "No. But they fire him anyway."

Pill Time
Lester turns white. His lips tremble. He slides open a desk drawer, pulls out a handful of pills, pops them in his mouth. He pushes savagely on a buzzer.

"Wait a minute, boss, there's more!" Yells Poison, alarmed. "There's the Vic Raschi and Ed Lopat and Herb Pennock and Lefty Gomez. Boss, there's more."

But Lester isn't listening. "Miss Higgenbottom," he is barking into an intercom. "Get me Ralph Houk! Quick!"

"Hello, Ralph? Ralph, this is Lester. Ralph, there are two kinds of accounts Image Makers, Inc. Won't take—the Devil and the New York Yankees. Are we clear on that? No, Ralph, not even for a piece of CBS. We can handle traitors, murderers, gangsters or grave robbers. But an outfit that tries with a minute faced kids and baseball—really, Ralph! My advice to you is to wait till midnight some night with that club of yours and get this thick wooden pike and drive it into their chest. Either that or change the name to the New York Bats." No, Ralph, not wooden bats. The kind with wings on them."

Art Jones Pulls Even

Art Jones, who prevented Guyle Fielder from winning a fifth straight Western Hockey League scoring championship by getting 100 points in the 1960-61 season, may yet stop the Seattle centremen from his eighth championship.

Portland's cagey veteran scored twice and assisted on two goals last night to pull even with Fielder, who drew an assist on Seattle's game-winning goal. Both have 83 points and are not far ahead of three other centremen, two picking up a bit last night with two assists.

Honeymoon Bay Mill Best

HONEYMOON BAY—The U.S. National Safety Council has awarded a president's letter citation to the Western Forest Industries Ltd. shingle mill here for completing more than three years without a disabling injury. The mill has already been cited for the best 1964 safety record among shingle mills in B.C. and the western U.S.

NANAIMO—Lawyer Ralph Hutchison has been elected to succeed Dr. Mladen Zorkin as president of the Nanaimo and District United Appeal. Others elected at the annual meeting Tuesday were Irvine Strong, Strong, first vice-president; Rudy Alexander, second vice-president; Clayton Schultz, honorary treasurer; Mrs. W. E. Rieker, honorary secretary, and directors David Martin, Jerry Covey, Edward Zdyk, Mrs. James Thorpe, Dr. Gerald Bunham, Marshall Hall, Lyle Pullan, Floyd Warner and Paul Griffin.

VANCOUVER—Graduate study awards from the Woodrow Wilson fellowship foundation have been won by two Vancouver Island students at UBC, Melvin Best of Lake Cowichan and Christopher Brealey of Campbell River. They will receive grants of $1,800 each and tuition costs at any Canadian or U.S. graduate school.

NANAIMO—Fire and heavy smoke damage to a home at 315 Mount Benson and its contents was considerable in a blaze of unknown origin here. Owner George Chesterman and his family were not hurt. A hole had to be chopped in the roof of the home, which was insured.

PARKSVILLE—Science, morality and social change will be the subject of a spring academic symposium for 25 professors and 55 students from the University of Victoria this weekend. The symposium, running from Friday evening until Sunday afternoon, will touch on such aspects of the general topic as sex, censorship, automation and the law.

UCLUELET—A money bylaw to provide a new sewage disposal system for Ucluelet may go before village voters in April, village council chairman Richard Poole has announced. He says government engineers are working on a system which they expect will be less expensive than previous plans.

LAKE COWICHAN—The Rose Bowl won jointly by Cowichan Lake and Chemainus last fall in Nanaimo for perfect attendance at the all-island Kinette meeting will be turned over to Chemainus Kinettes at a dinner meeting April 13, when the local group plays host to Chemainus and Duncan club members. Mrs. Pat Fisher, Mrs. Trudie Allen and Mrs. Florence Gordon have been named to a nominating committee to recommend an executive for the annual election of officers at next month's meeting.

TOFINO—All residents of this district have been invited to the annual meeting of the Tofino Hospital Society in the Legion hall at 8 p.m. March 26. The hospital serves an area including Tofino, Ucluelet, Long Beach, Port Albion and many logging operations, fishing camps and Indian villages.

DUNCAN—City resident Louie Jack, who returned Tuesday after serving 60 days in Oakalla for passing a worthless cheque, was sentenced in magistrate's court Wednesday to another 30 days. He pleaded guilty to possession of liquor while an interdict.

UCLUELET—Funeral services were held in New Westminster for William Simpson, 63, operator of the Ucluelet Taxi Co. since 1960, who died recently in a Vancouver hospital. A patient in the Tofino hospital, he was flown last month to Vancouver for surgery to remove a blood clot. He was a former Wellington resident.

Chamber Recommendation

Six-Day Out For Alberni

PORT ALBERNI—The Alberni Valley apparently will not join the Island trend to a six-day shopping week.

Six-day shopping started recently in Nanaimo and is likely in Parksville soon, but the Alberni Valley Chamber of Commerce retail committee has recommended retention of a five-day week except for six days in July and August.

THREE MARKETS

Committee chairman Jack Webber told the Chamber Tuesday the management of two supermarkets now open Monday mornings want to close all day Monday. The third supermarket in the area has not been approached.

The Chamber took no immediate action on the recommendation.

Mr. Webber, questioned about proposed provincial shop hours legislation, said the general operation is that corner stores would continue present operations.

PUTTING PRESSURE

When a member called drug stores virtually department stores, Mr. Webber said unfair competition could be eliminated only by putting pressure on civic authorities to permit drug stores to sell only drugs or items of need when retail stores are closed.

John Howard Society Opens Nanaimo Unit

NANAIMO—An office of the John Howard Society of Vancouver Island has opened in the Ryan block on Wallace Street. Nanaimo branch president R. W. Middlemass announced Wednesday.

He said the new development was forced by the "steadily increasing demand for the society's services" in the Nanaimo district, Alberni Valley, Courtenay and Campbell River.

Office manager Cal Dow, a former officer of the Brannan Lake school, will make regular visits to these areas.

The society, which helps paroled people, is financed in part by the United Appeal. Last year it received more than $2,000 and this year it is asking $3,500.

The Nanaimo branch was organized in 1958 with the special help of Mayor Pete Maffeo.

PARKSVILLE—A six-day week has been announced for the Parksville liquor store, effective April 1. Hours will be 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. except for 10 a.m. to 9 p.m. Fridays and lunch-hour closure has been abolished.

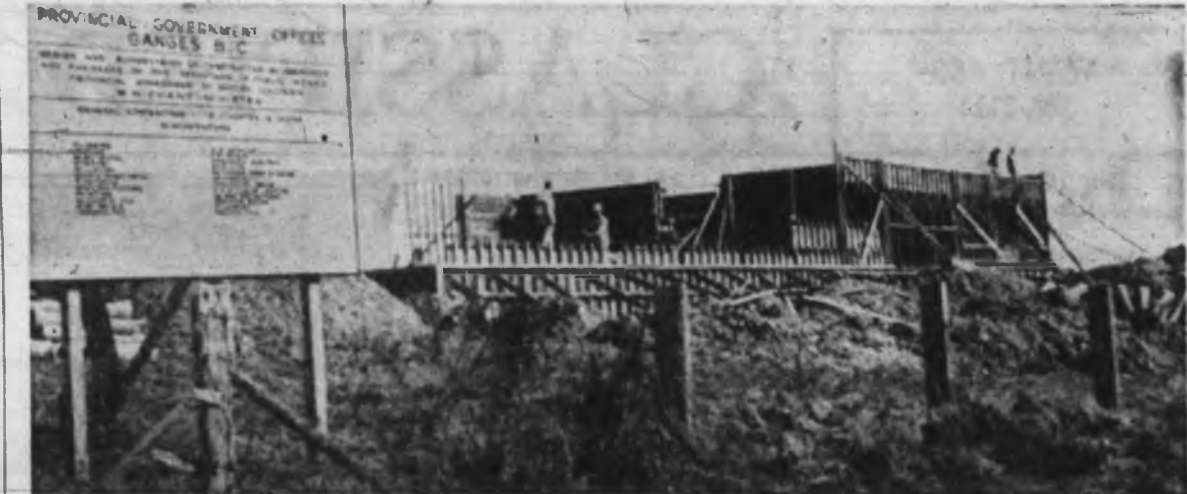

TOFINO—Mrs. Erling Reider Hagelin has been re-elected president of the Tofino hospital women's auxiliary. Other officers are Mrs. William Sharp, vice-president; Mrs. Kenneth MacKenzie, secretary-treasurer; Mrs. David Bond, centennial representative; Mrs. Harold Arnet, recreation, and Mrs. William Silta, hospital board.

GANGES—Winners in the Education Week oratorical contest for Salt Spring Island School students were, from the top down, Grades 1-3, Serena Kaye, Jim Pringle, Christina Marshall; Grades 4-6, Susan Byron, Peter Booth, Catherine Fraser; Grades 7-9, Lyn Bennett, Daniel Scoones, Ronda Byron; Grades 10-12, Marcel Blais, Diane Sharp, Gillian Humphreys.

TOFINO—Three social and cultural events have been set in Tofino and Ucluelet. The Legion branch will hold a St. Patrick's dance in the Legion hall at 8 p.m. Saturday, Ucluelet volunteer firemen will hold their annual ball in the Ucluelet Athletic Club hall April 3 and the Long Beach Overture Concert Society will present a piano recital in the high school at Ucluelet April 12.

UCLUELET—Committee officials have been named by the Ucluelet-Port Albion Chamber of Commerce. They include Mrs. Edna Batchelor and Louis Petersen, membership; Ronald Matterson, Gordon Edwards and Donald Hillier, civic improvement; S. D. Crawford, William Russell and Eiling Reite, roads and works; Frederick Petersen, George Gudbranson and Mr. Crawford, beaches, and Harold Thornton and Richard Poole, public relations.

PORT ALBERNI—New executive of the Alberni Valley Lions club is Barry Westwood, president; Ray Gaudet, vice-president; Ed Moore, treasurer; Marvin Lockwood, secretary, and Archie Cardinal, James Lawrence, James Regac and Richard Sawatsky.

Two Appeals Friday For Nicoll

NANAIMO—The assessment appeal board will sit in the courthouse Friday morning to hear the 1964 appeal of R. E. (Doc) Nicoll against assessments of 8.9 acres on Gabriola Island.

The hearing is the result of a writ of mandamus obtained by Mr. Nicoll in the B.C. Supreme Court against the actions of the Nanaimo court of revision.

The three-man appeal board will also be asked to hear Doc Nicoll's appeal against the decision of the local court to uphold 1965 assessments on the Gabriola Island property and 73-acre Breakwater Island.

PORT ALBERNI—A 19-year-old student and part-time longshoreman is in training for a 10,000-mile bicycle trip across Canada and back which he thinks will cost him about 30 of his 210 pounds.

Cliff Neyedil plans to leave June 10 and is optimistic he can complete the journey by his estimated return date of Aug. 28 but adds, "It may take up to 90 days, though."

He thinks he's given himself plenty of time to make it to St. John's, Nfld., and back home before enrolling for college in Edmonton Sept. 10.

Mr. Neyedil hopes to find a sponsor for the trip so he won't have to dig into his college fund for expenses.

He has been saving from his part-time waterfront job and taking night school courses to complete his Grade 12 credits in preparation for higher education.

His Conell bicycle, which he has owned for a year, is being converted to 12 speeds and has been equipped with special tires.

Regular training is part of his preparation for the excursion over Canada's mountains and prairies, but he says he expects to lose about 30 pounds during the strenuous trip.

Mr. Neyedil is no stranger to cross-country cycling. Since he was 15, he has taken part in the annual Qualicum-Victoria race.

'65 Budget Review March 26

LAKE COWICHAN—The Cowichan school board Tuesday night announced March 26 as the day it will meet provincial education department officials in Victoria to review its 1965 budget.

The local delegation will include finance chairman trustee H. E. Hobson, district school superintendent R. S. Price and board secretary-treasurer G. M. A. Rooke.

TRUSTEES' DAYS
Trustees who attended the recent teacher-recruiting Trustees' Days at the University of Victoria and UBC reported "very successful" visits.

Chairman A. B. Greenwell, Mr. Hobson, Mr. Rooke and Mr. Price attended the Victoria day March 9 while trustees Mrs. George Budden and Mrs. David Sharp, Mr. Price and Mr. Rooke went to UBC the next day.

CUP DONATED
The board approved in principle the donation of a cup to the Cowichan music festival for group participation. Arrangements have been made by the board to take students by bus to Duncan from Lake Cowichan for the festival.

Bi and Bi Cost: $1,424,640

OTTAWA (CP) — The royal commission on bilingualism and multiculturalism cost the government $1,424,640 up to Jan. 31, the Commons was informed Wednesday.

There are 125 full-time employees under the commission's 10 commissioners, said Jack Davis, parliamentary secretary to Prime Minister Pearson. The commissioners are paid $100 for each day they spend on commission duties.

Taylor Explains Inaction

Fear, Inability Stop Reds

SAIGON (UPI) — U.S. Ambassador Maxwell Taylor believes Moscow and Peking have not responded to the U.S. raids on North Viet Nam because of a combination of fear and inability, he was disclosed Wednesday.

(Communist China at the same time charged President Johnson was "a Hitler-type bandit and a war criminal" for ordering the raids. But its broadcasts, heard in Tokyo, made no mention of military action.)

Taylor made his statement in an interview with the Canadian Broadcasting Corporation. It contained these main points:

• There is no truth to the idea that the South Vietnamese are reluctant to fight the Communists.

• Negotiations now are impossible because "one can hardly negotiate one's freedom."

• Communist North Viet Nam's control of the Viet Cong "is absolute."

Mr. Taylor was asked why Communist China and the Soviet Union have not retaliated with military action against the bombing of North Vietnamese targets.

"One can't be sure," he replied. "Probably a combination of two factors: inability to respond adequately, and second, the fear of escalation, the realization that the risks of escalation are too great on their side to justify taking any great chances."

Mr. Taylor was asked by his interviewer, CBC commentator Tom Gould, if the United States might not be trying "to save from Communism a country that doesn't want to be saved."

RUSSIAN TAKES WALK IN SPACE

Second Ship in Orbit?

BOCHUM (UPI) — The West German Institute for Satellite and Space Research has monitored the signals of one manned Soviet space ship and said a second ship may also be up.

"Certain observations lead us to suspect a second space ship has been fired into the same orbit as the first," an institute scientist said.

BULLETIN

MOSCOW (UPI) — A Soviet cosmonaut stepped from the Voskhod II space-ship into outer space today.

Tass news agency said engineer Alexei Leonov "stepped out of the cabin of Voskhod II into outer space at 3:30 a.m. and moved up to five meters away from the ship."

This was the first time in history that a man has entered outer space on his own.

From UPI, AP-Reuters

MOSCOW — The Soviets today orbited two cosmonauts around the earth in a "space bus." Scientific sources said one would emerge from the ship during flight in an observation capsule — a feat never accomplished before.

It was believed that the new wrinkle in the Soviet space program was aimed at permitting a spaceman to make visual observations of an eventual docking operation. Perfection of such a technique is essential to any manned flights to the moon.

The spaceship — Voskhod (Sunrise) — was put into orbit six days before the scheduled launching date of America's two-man Gemini project. (See Page 9.)

The Soviet ship carried Col. Pavel Belyayev, 40, the pilot, and Lt. Col. Alexei Leonov, 41, the copilot.

The official Soviet Tass news agency said both men were "feeling well." The ship was launched at 10 a.m. (11 p.m. PST).

OUT 300 MILES

Tass said Voskhod 2 was orbiting the earth every 90.9 minutes. Its greatest distance from earth was given as 455 kilometers (300 miles). The closest point was 173 kilometers (108 miles). Tass said the ship was angled at 65 degrees to the equator.

There was speculation in Moscow that the flight would last between one and two weeks.

Russia's last manned space shot — its seventh — was Oct. 12, 1964.

In the October space shot, three cosmonauts — a pilot, a scientist and a doctor — made 16 orbits in a 24-hour flight aboard the first Voskhod (sunrise) space ship.

"Two-way radio communications are constantly maintained with the space ship," Tass said.

Belyayev and Leonov become the 10th and 11th Soviet cosmonauts.

The United States has launched four single-man space flights.

"The reports by the ship's commander show that the crew worked satisfactorily the orbiting and the transition to weightlessness," Tass reported.

"All the equipment on board the space ship is functioning normally."

Voters' List Duplications 'Ran Up to 40 Per Cent'

OTTAWA (CP) — A letter tabled in the Commons Wednesday charges that 40 per cent of the names on 1963 Burnaby-Coquitlam voters lists appeared on the lists of other federal ridings in British Columbia.

Burnaby-Coquitlam is represented in the Commons by New Democratic Leader Douglas.

Allegations about "alarming concentrations" of duplicated voters lists were contained in a letter sent to the Commons elections committee nearly a year ago by Morland T. Brown of 511 Jefferson Ave. New Westminster, B.C.

SEEN RECENTLY

The letter was tabled Wednesday by Maurice J. Moreau (L-York—Scarborough), chairman of the elections committee, who said in an accompanying letter he did not see Mr. Brown's letter until March 8 of this year.

On that date, Mr. Moreau sent a copy of the Brown letter to Mr. Justice Nathaniel T. Metzger of the B.C. Supreme Court, who was named by the federal government to conduct a judicial inquiry into alleged vote-rigging in several B.C. ridings in the 1963 federal election.

The Vancouver Province published articles alleging six unidentified Labor unions conspired to rig votes in favor of New Democratic candidates in several B.C. ridings. There are nine NDP members from B.C.

In a letter dated April 27, Mr. Brown said he had studied voters lists for all 22 federal constituencies in B.C. for 3,000 hours over a period of 12 months and found "startling facts."

The key portion of the five-page longhand letter read as follows: "Poll one Burnaby-Coquitlam was duplicated elsewhere in B.C. to the extent of 40 per cent. The same area in the B.C. provincial election was duplicated."

Farouk

Egypt Ousted Him in 1952

Roly-Poly King Dies in Exile

From AP-Reuters

ROME (CP) — Ex-King Farouk of Egypt, a roly-poly, husky living in exile in the Roman dolce vita set, died Wednesday night after being stricken at dinner in a suburban restaurant, police reported. He was 45.

Aides at Rome's San Camillo Hospital said he was dead on arrival there after midnight.

There was no immediate word on the cause of death.

WITH A WOMAN

He had gone to the restaurant with a woman companion.

Farouk had lived and luxuriated in Italy most of the time since he was forced to abdicate and exiled in July 1952 by an Egyptian revolutionary officers' group.

RULED SINCE 1936

He had ruled since 1936 when, as a handsome boy of 16, he mounted the throne in Cairo to carry on the Mohammed Ali Dynasty that had been set up in the 19th century under the Ottoman Turks.

The 1952 revolution, headed by Maj.-Gen. Mohamed Naguib as the front man and mastermind by Lt.-Col. Gamal Abdel Nasser, permitted him to name his only son, the infant Fouad, as his successor.

But the monarchy soon was ended and Egypt became a republic — now called the United Arab Republic with Nasser as president.

"PRINCE CHARMING" Scandals arising from the Arab defeat by the Israelis in the 1948 Palestine war led to Farouk's downfall.

Although only 45, he looked at least 15 years older.

Farouk was hailed as the "prince charming" who would bring salvation to his country when he ascended the throne.

FAROUK CHANGED

A monarch who squandered the prestige of a throne, he was an unpopular ruler by the time he was 30.

From a tall, handsome and intelligent youth he turned into a bulky and corpulent man, with sparse hair and bad eyes perpetually shielded by dark glasses.

His personal failings were the main cause of his rapid decline in popularity and eventual downfall.

Embassy Razed

DONN (Reuters) — The West German foreign ministry said Wednesday demonstrators had burned down the West German Embassy in Teheran, the capital of Iran.

State Secretary Karl Carstens protested strongly and demanded punishment for the demonstrators and compensation.

South Viet Bombs Kill 30 Children

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (Reuters) — South Vietnamese planes bombed a village near here Wednesday, killing an estimated 45 villagers, including 30 school children, military sources here said Wednesday.

A Communist Viet Cong flag was seen flying over the village, Man Quang, about 375 miles north-east of Saigon.

U.S. Planes Pound More Red Targets

DA NANG, South Viet Nam (CP) — Six U.S. Air Force Thunderchief fighter bombers streaked westward under fighter escort Wednesday and emptied their bomb racks of more than 20 tons of high explosives, apparently on Communist targets in Laos.

The Laotian frontier — a jungle gateway for Communist Viet Cong recruits and supplies from North Viet Nam — is only 50 miles west of the U.S. marine base — guarded Da Nang air base.

FIGHTERS ALSO

Accompanying the supersonic jet fighters were six or more F-100 Super-Sabre fighters.

The strike force returned with no disclosure of the nature of its mission or the results.

A blackout and air raid drill in Hanoi Tuesday night suggested North Viet Nam fears its capital might become a target of U.S.-South Vietnamese air raids, though the closest strike so far has been 100 miles away.

VIET CONG BLASTED About 24 U.S. B-57 jet-bombers blasted Viet Cong guerrilla positions in Binh Duong provinces south of Saigon.

A U.S. military spokesman said an American soldier was killed and three others were injured when South Vietnamese forces attacked Viet Cong troops in helicopter and riverborne operations about 65 miles southwest of Saigon Tuesday. He estimated Communist losses at 50 dead.

Citizenship Denied

Still No Room For Godless

TORONTO (CP) — Mr. Justice Stanley Schatz of the Ontario Supreme Court upheld Wednesday a Cayuga county judge's decision denying Canadian citizenship to a Dutch husband and wife because they do not believe in God.

Mr. Justice Schatz emphasized in his 41-page judgment that his review is limited only to a consideration of Judge W. W. Leach's jurisdiction and the law as he applied it.

Judge Leach had earlier refused to recommend Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bergama of Caledonia, Ont., as being suitable to be granted citizenship under the Canadian Citizenship Act of 1954.

Mr. Bergama, who came here nine years ago, had admitted to Judge Leach that his family does not attend church. He told the judge that if his children want to join a church, "that is up to them."

NOT EVERYBODY

Judge Leach had replied: "The things that we believe in this country stand for Christianity... being honest and believing in Christ's teachings."

"Not everybody follows this, but that is what we try to attain in this country, the Christian way of life. I feel you must have some kind of faith, but you don't seem to believe in anything from what I can gather."

Judge Leach had ruled that the Bergamas could not take the oath of allegiance as prescribed in the Citizenship Act.

Mr. Justice Schatz said in his report that originally in common law a person could not be accepted as a witness unless he believed in God. He said that nothing in the Citizenship Act has relaxed this requirement.

The judgment noted that the Canadian Bill of Rights, calling for freedom of religion, was passed after the Citizenship Act and its regulations.

BILL OF RIGHTS

The Supreme Court judge said: "The Canadian Parliament has in the Citizenship Act declared the requirements for obtaining the privilege of Canadian citizenship, and the Bill of Rights in no way affects the purpose or effect of that statute."

He said Judge Leach made no error in law that would deprive him of jurisdiction, and the Ontario Supreme Court could not interfere with the judge's decision on that ground.

Two Rushed To Hospital

A man and woman were taken to Rest Haven Hospital in Sidney after a freight tractor and car collided at Patricia Bay Highway and Beacon Avenue early today.

The man's injuries were undeclared. His wife was shaken up. Two other occupants of the car were uninjured.
